PHILADELPHIA:

PRINTED FOR THOMAS STEPHENS, N^o 60,
SOUTH SECOND STREET; BY W. WOODWARD.

Entered according to Act of Congress.

THERE is no publication in large and populous cities of more general utility than a DIRECTORY.

The constant accession of new inhabitants, together with the frequent removals, are two obvious reasons in support of the necessity of publishing one annually.

The Editor, influenced by these circumstances, has published the present, and intends presenting the citizens with one every year; not doubting to meet encouragement to keep on foot so desirable a collection of useful information.

Annexed to the Directory follows a list of the duties payable on goods; with every information respecting the Custom-house; interesting to merchants and others concerned in mercantile transactions.

An account of public institutions, national and political Societies, &c. with the present officers names, a description of the city; and the places of residence of the members of Congress while in town.

Since the first collection of the names, several have come to this city, and some are accidentally omitted, they will be found in the Supplement preceding the work.

The Subscriber is well aware, that in a publication of this nature, it is almost impossible, entirely to avoid errors. For these, which he hopes are few, he solicits the indulgence of the Public.

Zachary's Court, on the N. side of Walnut Street, between Front and Second Streets.

 Some of the streets are now known, by names different from those generally intended.

THE numbers in the streets lying North and South, begin at the several corners of High Street, with Number 1 on the East and No. 2 on the West sides. High Street is considered as the common line of division, and the part of these streets lying North of it, has the addition of North to its name, and those lying South, the addition of South, the numbers proceed in each street from No. 1 on the East corner and No. 2 on the West corner, in excess of two Northward and Southward from High street, having all the odd numbers on the East and all the even numbers on the West sides.

Thus, if a stranger wishes to find No. 60, South Second Street,* he will know from the even number, that it is on the West side, from the word South, that it is Southward from High Street, from the word Second, that it is a main street—therefore cannot be at a loss, to discover the residence of any person, whose name in the directory calls for a main street.

When a person sought resides in any other street, lane, or alley, the enquirer must turn to the alphabetical list of the lesser streets, &c. where he will find opposite to its name the main street from whence it begins, its direction whether East or West by the letters E. & W. or North and South by the letters N. S. prefixed, and proceeding to the intersection of it, he will discover the progress of the numbers and follow them till he finds the house sought.

* Stephens, the Bookseller.

Thus to find an even number in Union Street, look under letter U in the list, and Union Street will be found to begin from the west side of Front street between Spruce and Pine streets, and extending E. & W. across three squares, to terminate at the East side of Fourth street; now if you come to any intersection of Union street you examine the first number you see; you know by the even number, that you are to seek on the South side, by the index hand the progress of the numbers, and by the first number you meet, whether you are to go Westward for a higher or Eastward for a lower number.

The like modes serve for the lesser streets, &c. in a N. & S. direction, except that the odd numbers are on the East and the even numbers on the West side.

The city, from Cedar to Vine street, contains twelve wards, the Liberties on the North of the city two, the district of Southwark two, and Passyunk and Moyamensing each one.

All the improvements which extend to the North from Vine street, are called the Northern Liberties, and those to the South from Cedar street, are part of the district of Southwark.

THOMAS STEPHENS,

Wholesale and Retail Bookseller, Stationer and Importer, N^o. 60, South
Second Street:

Has for sale publications of merit, American, and European, on Divinity, Law, Belles Letters, &c. &c. Also elegant Prints, Paintings, and every article in the Stationary business, all which he continues to sell on the most reasonable terms.

Wholesale Purchasers will find it their advantage to deal at his store, not merely on account of the variety of which it contains, but from his being a Manufacturer, as well as an Importer, which circumstance enables him to sell at a very small advance. To dealers living in distant parts he gives an extensive credit, and receives, as cash, good bills at a short date, for which he allows a discount. Gentlemen who wish to embark in his line of business, and by purchasing a quantity of books, may at all times receive advice respecting any matters in the book and Stationary branch.

—The new publications will be forwarded immediately as they appear, carriage free.

*On the Tonnage of Ships or Vessels are imposed

ON ships or vessels of the United States when entered from any foreign port or place; and when entered in a district in one state from a district in another state (other than an adjoining state on the sea coast, or on a navigable river; and other than vessels duly licensed, employed in the coasting trade, or in the bank or whale fisheries, which are exempt from paying tonnage, while so employed, more than once in a year) having on board goods, wares and merchandize, taken in one state, to be delivered in another, at the rate of six cents per ton. On ships or vessels built within the United States since the 20th July, 1789, but owned wholly or in part by foreigners, when entered from a foreign port or place, at the rate of thirty cents per ton; on all other ships or vessels when entered from a foreign port or place, at the rate of fifty cents per ton; and on all ships or vessels not of the United States, when entered in one district from another district, having on board goods, wares and merchandize, taken in one district to be delivered in another, at the rate of fifty cents per ton.

To ascertain the tonnage of a ship, if the same be double decked, take the length thereof from the fore part of the main stem to the after part of the stern post above the upper deck; the breadth at the broadest part above the main wales; half of which breadth account the depth, deduct from the length three fifths of the breadth; multiply the remainder by the breadth, and that product by the depth; and divide the last product by ninety-five. If the ship be single decked, take the length and breadth as above directed; take the depth from the under side of the deck plank to the ceiling in the hold; and deducting from the length three fifths of the breadth; multiply and divide as aforesaid.

Duties on tonnage must be paid within ten days after report of the cargo made to the collector; and any master of a vessel leaving or attempting to leave a port without paying such duties, forfeits five hundred dollars.

Drawbacks and Bounties.

ON all goods, wares and merchandize, (spirits, manufactured tobacco, snuff, and refined sugar, excepted) for which duties, on importation, to the amount of twenty dollars, shall have been paid, or secured, there is allowed, if the same, within twelve calendar months, be re-exported to any foreign country, a drawback equivalent to the duties so paid or secured, deducting therefrom, as an indemnification for the expences which may have accrued by storage, fees of officers, and the like, one per cent.

On spirits, if the same amount to one hundred and fifty gallons, and be exported in vessels of thirty tons and upwards, an allowance, by way of drawback, for every gallon exported, equal to the impost per gallon, according to the respective proofs, deducting, for the purposes aforesaid, half a cent per gallon: And on spirits distilled within the United States from imported molasses, an additional allowance of three cents per gallon: to balance the duty on that article.

On pickled fish of the fisheries of the United States, eighteen cents per barrel, and on other provisions salted within the said states, fifteen cents per barrel (provided the bounty amount to three dollars) at their exportation, as an equivalent for the duty on salt.

There is also an annual bounty payable on the last day of December, in lieu of a former allowance on dried fish, to the owners or agents of fishing vessels legally qualified and employed in carrying on the bank and other cod fisheries, and which shall be therein employed four months during the fishing season; reckoning from the last day of February to the last day of November, one dollar and twenty cents for every ton of the actual admeasurement of such vessels or boats, as are more than five, and less than twenty tons burthen, and shall have landed during the preceding season a quantity of fish, which when cured and fit for exportation, shall be equal to twelve quintals for every ton of her said admeasurement; the allowance in this case to be accounted as part of the proceeds of the fares of the said boat or vessel, and to be so divided among the persons interested: one dollar and eighty cents for every ton of the admeasurement of such vessels as are between twenty and thirty tons burthen: and three dollars for every ton of such vessels as exceed thirty tons burthen; provided the allowance to any one vessel do not, in a season, exceed one hundred and seventy dollars. The allowances in the two cases last mentioned are to be divided, three eighths to the owners of the vessels, and five eighths to the fishermen employed therein the preceding season, in such proportion as the quantity of fish by them respectively taken shall bear to the whole quantity taken on board such vessels during the said season.

Besides the above specified drawbacks and allowances, which entitle the exporter, &c. to the receipt of money, there are sundry other allowances, which tend to diminish the duty to the importer, &c. Such are the allowances for leakage on liquors, and for draught and tare on articles of weight.

For the leakage on all liquors upon which duties are payable by the gallon, including spirits distilled within the United States, there is an allowance of two per cent. according to the guage of the casks containing the same.

For draught, on any quantity to the amount	lb.
of an hundred weight, or 112 pounds	1
On any quantity, from one to two hundred weight	2
From two to three hundred weight	3
From three to ten hundred	4
From ten to eighteen hundred	7
On any quantity above eighteen hundred	9
For tare, on every whole chest of bohea tea	70
On every half chest	36
On every quarter chest	20

On every chest of hyson or other green tea of the weight of seventy pound or upwards, gross	20
On every box of other tea, of not less than fifty pounds, nor more than seventy pounds, gross	18
All other boxes of tea, according to their invoice pr. C.
On coffee, in bags	2
In bales	3
In casks	12
On pepper, in bales	5
In casks	12
On sugar, other than loaf, in casks	12
In boxes	15

On all other goods according to the invoice:

It being lawful also in any case where the original invoice is produced, and the tare appears therein, the importer or consignee concurring, to estimate the tare according to such invoice.

The preceding are the principal cases in which drawbacks and premiums are recognized by Congress: of the benefit of which no one can avail himself without a careful adherence to the rules and restrictions of the law. Which restrictions, being enacted for the prevention of fraud, are very particular and explicit; any material departure from which will not only deprive the party of the benefit of the premium or drawback; but expose him to forfeiture, and in some cases both of goods and vessel. We shall, in a concise view, collect and set forth the principal regulations on the subject, with the forfeitures annexed to the violation thereof, for the information of those who may not have had opportunity or leisure to attend minutely to the laws; referring such as wish for more particular information to the several acts of Congress relative to imports.

In case of the exportation of goods, wares and merchandize, the exporter must, previous to lading them on board any vessel for that purpose, give to the collector of the district, from which the exportation is intended to be made, twenty-four hours notice of such his intention, specifying therein the several articles intended to be exported, together with the casks, cases, chests, boxes and other packages containing the same, and their respective marks, numbers and contents. And if they be imported articles, notice must also be given of the ship or vessel in which, the person for or by whom, and the place from which they were imported; accompanied with proof by oath of the persons, including the exporter, through whose hands they have passed, respecting their due importation, and the security of the duties thereupon. Proof must also be made in respect to pickled fish, and salted provisions, that the fish are of the fisheries of the United States, and that the provisions were salted therein. The exporter must further make oath that the said goods are, bona fide, intended to be exported; and enter into bond with sufficient sureties, in a sum equal to the amount of the drawback, not to reland them within the limits of the United States, as settled by the late treaty of peace.

These requisitions being complied with on the part of the exporter, and the goods inspected by the collector, and found to correspond with the notice and proof respecting the same, a permit is granted for lading them.

But the drawback thereon is not payable till six months after their exportation, a written certificate from two reputable merchants at the foreign port or place where they shall have been landed, accompanied with the oath of the master and mate of the vessel, certifying their delivery, being required previously to be produced to the collector with whom the outward entry was made: unless when the landing of the goods is prevented by some unavoidable accident, as ship-wreck; in which case a protest, in due form of law, made by the master and mate, or some of the seamen; or when no such protest can be had, the oath of the exporter (unless there is good reason to suspect the truth of the same) is permitted to be taken in lieu of such other proof.

These regulations being intended to prevent every kind of fraud, collusion, or deception, it is enacted, sect. 59 of the "act to provide more effectually for the collection of the duties imposed by law on goods, wares and merchandize imported into the United States, and on the tonnage of ships and vessels," That if any goods, &c. entered for exportation, with intent to drawback the duties, or to obtain any allowance given by law on the exportation thereof, shall be landed in any port or place within the limits of the United States as aforesaid, all such goods, &c. shall be subject to seizure and forfeiture, together with the ship or vessel from which such goods shall be landed, and the vessel or boats used in landing the same; and all persons concerned therein, shall, on indictment and conviction thereof, suffer imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months.

In case also of the exportation of spirits, whether of foreign or domestic distillation, notice as aforesaid must be given to the proper officer of inspection, six hours previous to putting them on board any vessel for that purpose, of the exporter's intention to export them, of the number of casks, vessels, and cases containing them, and the respective marks thereof, the place where they are then deposited, the ship or vessel in which, and the place to which they are intended to be exported. He must also produce to the said officer the certificates, which by law ought to accompany them, and make oath as aforesaid of his true intention to export the same, and proof of the duties being paid or secured, and enter into bond with two sufficient sureties, (the master of the vessel being one) in a sum equal to the value of the spirits, not to re-land them. After which, being duly inspected and branded, they must be laden on board the vessel in presence of the officer who inspected them: And if afterward unshipped or re-landed within the limits of the United States, or within four leagues of the coast thereof, unless the voyage shall not have been pursued, or shall have been altered, or in distress of weather, (which distress must be immediately notified to the principal officer of the customs, residing at the nearest port thereto) both the said spirits and the ship, with her tackle, apparel, and furniture, and all boats or vessels employed in unshipping or landing the same, and their tackle and furniture, are forfeited, and are liable to seizure by any officer, of the customs or of inspection. The payment of the drawback is also in this case deferred till six months after exportation.

And in case of allowances on fishing vessels, where the boats or vessels are under twenty tons, an account of the weight of fish caught, the original adjustment and settlement of the fare or fares among the owners and fishermen, together with a written account of the length, breadth and depth of the boat or vessel, and the time she has been actually employed in the fishery during the preceding season, must be produced to the collector of the district authorised to pay the said allowance, and sworn or affirmed to before him, in order to entitle the owner, his agent or lawful representative, to receive the same. And if any fraud or deceit in obtaining such allowance, shall, at any time within a year after paying it, appear to have been practised, the boat or vessel, upon which the allowance shall have been paid, is by law forfeited, if found within the district; otherwise the owner having practised such fraud or deceit, forfeits and is liable to pay one hundred dollars.

Where the vessels are of twenty tons or upwards, an agreement in writing or print must, previous to any voyage, be made between the skipper or master and every fisherman, expressing the terms of shipment; whether the same are to continue for the voyage only, or for the season; and that the fish or proceeds of such voyage or voyages, which may appertain to the fishermen, shall be divided among them in proportion to the quantity of fish by them respectively caught; to be also indorsed or countersigned by the owner or his agent. Which agreement, together with a certificate, subscribed by the owner, his agent or lawful representative, and certifying on his or their oath, the particular day on which any vessel sailed on, or returned from the several voyages, which she may have made the preceding season, must, in like manner, be produced to the collector, before the said owner, &c. can be entitled to receive any allowance.

A General ABSTRACT from the REVENUE LAWS; wherein the several Parts of the Acts are digested, and transposed under distinct Heads, agreeably to the Subjects with which they have relation.

I. Of the Duty of Masters of Vessels.

EVERY master of a vessel, bound to the district of Nottingham, must, on penalty of five hundred dollars, deposit with the surveyor of the port of Town Creek, a manifest of the cargo, unless he shall have previously delivered one to some officer of the customs coming on board; bound to the district of Tappahannock, with the surveyor of the port of Urbanna; to the district of Bermuda Hundred, or City Point, with the collector of Norfolk and Portsmouth, or of Hampton; to the district of South Quay, with the collector of Edenton. Which manifest, the respective collectors and surveyors must, after registry, transmit, duly certified, to the officer with whom entry is to be made.

Also, every master of a vessel, belonging wholly, or in part, to citizens of the United States, must, on arrival from any foreign country, have an accurate and true manifest of the cargo on board; and in default thereof, he forfeits the value of all goods not included in such manifest, unless due proof be made, that no part of the cargo had been unshipped since taken on board, and that such manifest had been lost, or mislaid, or defaced by accident, or was incorrect by mistake.

Which manifest, every master of a vessel, as aforesaid, must, on penalty of a sum not exceeding five hundred dollars, produce to the first officer of the customs, who shall appear on board after his arrival within four leagues of the coasts of the United States; and also to the first such officer of the customs, who shall appear on board after his arrival in a district in which any part of his cargo is to be discharged; delivering in either case, a copy thereof, by himself subscribed. The production of the manifest and receipt of the copy, such officer must certify respectively, on penalty of five hundred dollars; certifying on the original, the day and year when produced, and the deliver copy; and on the copy, the day and year it was delivered. He must also transmit said copy to the collector of the district to which such vessel is bound.

If any part of the cargoes of such vessels, as laden with goods, and bound to the United States, have arrived within four leagues of the coast, be unladen previous to their coming into port and being legally authorized to unlade, all the goods so unladen, and any vessel or boat into which they may be put, are forfeited; and the master and mate of the vessel so unladen, forfeit, each, one thousand dollars; and every other person aiding and assisting, treble the value of the goods unladen.—These forfeitures are not, however, incurred in case of unavoidable accidents, necessity, or distress of weather, if duly notified and strictly proved.

Also, if any ship or vessel has arrived within the limits of a district of the United States, from a foreign country, she leaves or attempts to leave it, (unless to proceed to a more interior district,) previous to report and entry made, the master forfeits four hundred dollars. And the collector, naval officer, surveyor, or any revenue cutters may arrest and bring her back; unless the departure was occasioned by distress of weather, distress of enemies, or other necessity, which in either case must be strictly proved.

Further, every master of a vessel (ships of war and public packets excepted) must within twenty-four hours after his arrival in any port of the United States, (if the usual hours of business will permit) make report thereof to the chief officer of the customs at the port, and within forty-eight hours, a further report of the cargo, and deliver a manifest to the collector. In default of which, he forfeits one thousand dollars.

But masters of vessels, whereof only part of the cargoes is destined to any particular port of the United States, may, after paying or securing the duties of such part, and giving bond equal to the amount of duties on the remainder, that no part thereof shall be landed in the United States without due entry, proceed to the port or place of their destination.

And when the cargoes of any vessels are destined to ports in different districts, the masters thereof may proceed from district to district, paying in each district, the duties on such goods as may be delivered therein, and giving bond to the collector of the district where they first arrived, for their due entry in every other district, and also obtaining from the respective collectors, to whom any part of their cargoes may be reported, copies of such reports, and certificates of the quantity and particulars of the goods delivered.—Any master, in default of obtaining such copy and certificate, or neglecting to produce them to any subsequent collector, forfeits five hundred dollars.—But in case of spirits, such certificates must be had from, and produced to the officers of inspection.

Sea-stores, being exempt from duty, must be designated as such in the master's report, and if excessive, the duty may be estimated; on the excess, the value whereof is forfeited, unless such duty be paid; as also treble the value of any articles thereof, if landed for sale. Vessels not bound to the United States, but putting in, in distress, the master and mate must, within twenty-four hours, make protest, setting forth the circumstances of the distress, before a notary public, or other person duly authorized; and, within forty-eight hours, report of the cargo, as in other cases: and the distress being duly certified by the wardens of the port, permits, may if necessary, be granted for unloading; the collectors causing the goods unladen to be stored, and, if damaged, or if necessary in repairing the ship, allowing them, the duties thereon being first paid, to be sold.

Masters of vessels bound to foreign ports, previous to obtaining a clearance, must deliver to the collector of the district from which they are about to sail, manifests of their cargoes; and any master departing without a clearance, forfeits two hundred dollars.

The penalty of false swearing, as well of masters of vessels, as of the owners or consignees of goods, or their factors or agents, is fine or imprisonment, or both; not exceeding, in case of the former, one thousand dollars; of the latter one year.

No master of a vessel arriving at any port, where there is a post-office, may report or make entry, till he has delivered to the post-master all letters in his possession, directed to any person within the United States.

II. Of the Duty of the Owners or Consignees of Goods.

Within fifteen days after the master of any vessel shall have made report to the collector, the owners or consigners, or their factors or agents must, on oath or affirmation, make entry with the said collector, of the goods consigned to them, particularizing the marks, numbers and contents of each package; or if in bulk, the quantity and quality; producing the original invoices, documents, and bills of lading, and declaring, that should any other goods afterwards appear to be consigned to them, they will make it known in order to a due entry thereof.

Articles exempt from duty, as clothes, books, household furniture, &c. must be separately and distinctly entered by the owner or his agent; who, according to the best of his knowledge, must make oath respecting such owner, his occupation, arrival or expected arrival; and that the said articles are really intended for his, or his family's use, and not for sale; which oath being endorsed on the entry, must be subscribed by the person making it. And in case such person be not the real owner of the goods, he must give bond, that a like oath, shall, within a year be had of the real owner, either taken before the collector with whom the entry is made, or produced to him duly executed. A copy of which oath and entry must be transmitted to the secretary of the treasury.

Report and entry must also be made on the re-importation of articles of the growth or manufactures of the United States. Such articles being duty-free, their identity must be carefully proved. For which purpose, the oaths of such persons as have knowledge of the facts are required, relative to the time of their exportation, the ship in which, and the person by whom exported; and if imported into any other district than that from which they were exported, a certificate from the collector of the district, certifying their exportation: such certificate, however, being dispensed with, where it cannot be immediately produced, on giving bond for its production within four months.

No goods imported from a foreign country may be unladen till the duties, agreeably to an estimate made by the collector and naval officer (where there is one at the port) are paid or secured; and a permit signed by the said collector, and countersigned by the said naval officer (where there is one at the port) granted; nor in any case, except by special licence, unless between sun-rise and sun-set. Goods unladen in violation of these restrictions (as also the vessel and her tackle, where the value of the goods amount to four hundred dollars) are forfeited; and every person concerned therein incurs a penalty of four hundred dollars, of being advertised in the public papers, and incapacity of holding office for seven years. Also goods requiring to be weighed or guaged, may not, on penalty of forfeiture, be removed from the wharf where first landed, without the presence of a proper officer, till it be done.

Goods whereof the entry does not specify the particulars, are required to be stored till the particulars are ascertained, and the duties adjusted. And in all cases, where the final adjustments of the duties exceed the estimate thereof before taken, the difference is to be paid to the collector; and where it is less than such estimate, the party having paid or secured them agreeably thereto, to be refunded or credited, as the case may be.

III. Of the duty of the Officers of the Customs.

The officers of the customs are required to take oath and give bond for the faithful discharge of the duties of their respective offices; and for default of the former, they incur a penalty of two hundred dollars.

The collectors are empowered, in presence of the naval officer, where there is one, to administer the necessary oaths to masters of vessels, the owners of goods, &c. And collectors, naval officers, and surveyors of ports, may, in case of absence or sickness, act by deputy.

To superintend the delivery of goods, inspectors may be put and kept on board of vessels, while lying in port, or while going from district to district; may prohibit any goods from being unladen without a permit, and after sun set, secure the hatches, which may not be opened, except in their presence, on penalty of two hundred dollars.—In like manner the officers of the customs, including those of the revenue cutters, may as well without as within their respective districts, go on board of all such vessels as, bound to the United States, have arrived within four leagues of the coast, may demand manifests, examine the cargoes, and designate any trunk or package, being separate from the rest of the cargo, sealing the same, if thought proper, and transmitting to the collectors of the districts to which such vessels are bound, a particular account thereof; and any such trunk or package, on arrival, not appearing, or the seal being broken, subjects the master to a penalty of two hundred dollars. Such officers may in like circumstances, make seizures, where goods are legally forfeited; and if, in any case impeded or resisted in the execution of their duty, the person offending forfeits a sum not exceeding four hundred dollars.

Entries on the delivery of the cargoes of vessels, must, when, such delivery is completed, be compared with the entries of the owners, or consignees, and the result endorsed on the respective entries, and subscribed by the officers making the comparison.—And in case any package which shall have been reported, be missing, the master forfeits five hundred dollars; but may save the penalty by making due proof before proper authority, that no part of his cargo since taken on board, had been unshipped, except, as contained in his report, or that such disagreement was by accident or mistake.

In case any goods, other than salt and coal, remain on board any vessel, fifteen days after the master's report is required to be made, the same must, by the inspectors, be delivered into the custody of the collector; who keeping them at the risk of the owner, may at the expiration of nine months, if claim be not previously made, cause them to be appraised by two reputable merchants (to ascertain the duties thereon) and sold at public auction, retaining the duties, and paying the overplus, if any, for the use of the owner, into the treasury of the United States. And when goods are damaged, or not accompanied with the original invoice, the duties may be ascertained by appraisement of two merchants, the collector choosing one, and the owner the other: or goods not accompanied with invoices, may at the option and risk of the owner, be kept by the collector till the invoice be obtained. But goods entered and not invoiced are forfeited; and any collector suspecting invoices to be not according to the true value of the goods, may cause an appraisement thereof to be made, as in case of damaged goods.

On suspicion of fraud, packages, whereof entry has been made, may in the presence of two or more reputable merchants, be opened and examined; and in case of disagreement, unless it be proved to have been by accident or mistake such articles as disagree with their respective entries, are subject to forfeiture. Goods concealed, with intention to defraud the revenue, are also, if found, subject to forfeiture. And any person purchasing goods liable to seizure, knowing them to be such, forfeits double their value.

Officers of the customs, demanding or receiving other than legal fees, incur a penalty of two hundred dollars; and accepting a bribe or reward, for conniving at a false entry of vessels or goods, a penalty of not less than two hundred, nor greater than two thousand dollars. And persons giving or offering such bribe or reward, incur a like penalty.

IV. Of the Payment of Duties, &c.

In all cases where the duties do not exceed fifty dollars, they must be paid immediately; but where they exceed that sum they may be either paid immediately, or secured by bond, for their payment, if accruing on West-India goods, other than salt, in four months; on salt in nine months; on wines in twelve months; and on all other articles, teas excepted, one half in six, one quarter in nine, and the remainder in twelve months: which bond may, at the option of the obligor, either include one or more sureties, or, without sureties, be accompanied with a deposit of part of the goods. And the duties on teas may be secured by a bond with sureties, payable in one year: or by bond, without sureties, in double their amount, payable in two years; the teas being deposited at the risk and expence of the importers, in warehouses agreed on between them and an inspector. And in case of deposit, any part of teas may be delivered to the owners on paying, or further securing the payment of the duties, by bond, with sureties to be paid, where the duties do not exceed one hundred dollars in four months; where they exceed one hundred, and do not exceed five hundred dollars, in eight months; or where they exceed five hundred dollars, in twelve months. But the credit by the last mentioned bond must not exceed two years from the deposit of the teas; the collector then having power to cause so much thereof, to be sold at public auction as will discharge the arrears of duties still due, with cost of sale.

Bonds for duties not being paid at the time they become due, the collectors are required to institute suits for their recovery; and in case of insolvency, the debts due to the United States have priority.

V. Of the Manner in which Goods must be imported.

Spirits, wines and teas, must on pain of forfeiture, at least of the two former, be landed under the superintendence of some officer of inspection, to whom all permits from collectors for their landing must be previously produced.

Distilled spirits may not be imported in any cask which shall have been marked pursuant to any law respecting such spirits, on pain of forfeiture of the spirits and the ship or vessel importing them. Nor may any distilled spirits, except arrack, and sweet cordials, be imported in casks of less capacity than ninety gallons, on pain of forfeiture.—Ale, beer, or porter may not be imported in less casks than of the capacity of forty gallons, or in less packages than six dozen bottles, on pain of forfeiture thereof, and of the ship or vessel importing them.—

No goods other than household furniture, and clothes of persons coming into the U. States for the purpose of becoming inhabitants, may be brought from a foreign country, into any district thereof, Louisville, Champlain, and South Hero excepted, in any other manner than by sea, nor by sea in vessels less than thirty tons burthen, on pain of forfeiture of all such goods, and the carriages, teams or vessels by which conveyed.

By an act of Congress passed the 8th of May, 1792, the President is authorised to make such discretionary allowances to the officers of the excise, as he shall deem reasonable; not exceeding seven and an half per cent of the amount of duties on distilled spirits, nor the annual sum of 70,000 dollars. And by an act of the 5th of June, 1794, he is authorised to make such further allowances as may appear reasonable; not exceeding, by one third, the allowances heretofore made.

This branch of revenue is under the immediate direction and superintendence of the commissioner of the revenue. The accounts of the officers are however passed in the same form with all others; being first examined by the Auditor, and receiving their final settlement in the office of the Comptroller of the Treasury.

The denominations of money of account, as they are by law required to be used in the public offices, and in all judicial proceedings of the United States, are dollars, (the dollar being the unit) dimes or tenths, cents or hundredths, and mills or thousandths of a dollar.

POST-OFFICE ESTABLISHMENT.

No. 34, South Front Street.

JOHAN HABERSHAM, post-master general. Salary 2400 dollars. Robert Patton, Postmaster; Charles Burral, assistant.

Rates of Postage.

SINGLE letters carried by land, for any distance Not exceeding 30 miles, 6 cents—from 30 to 60 miles, 8 cents—from 60 to 100 miles, 10 cents—from 100 to 150 miles, 12½ cents—from 150 to 200 miles, 15 cents—from 200 to 250 miles, 17 cents—from 250 to 350 miles, 20 cents—from 350 to 450 miles, 22 cents—from 450 miles, 25 cents.

Double letters are double, and triple letters, triple of these rates. A packet of the weight of one ounce, avoirdupoise weight, at the rate of four single letters, and in like proportion for one of a greater weight. News Papers, one cent each, for any distance, not exceeding 100 miles, to any distance in the same state where printed, the same; and for any greater distance from one state to another, one and a half cents.

All letters or packets conveyed in private vessels, four cents, with the addition of legal postage, if destined to any other place than where such vessel may arrive.

All packets to and from the President and Vice-president of the United States; to and from the secretary of the treasury, the comptroller, the auditor, the register, the commissioner of the revenue, the treasurer, the secretary of state, the secretary of war, the post-master general and his assistant, are free of postage. And also all letters and packets, not exceeding two ounces in weight, to and from any member of congress, the secretary of the senate, and the clerk of the house of representatives, during any session of congress, and twenty days after it. But no public officer can frank any letters, except his own; and any letter enclosed to any of them, and directed to another person, shall be put into the post-office, and be charged with the usual postage.

Pamphlets and magazines, not exceeding fifty miles, one cent per sheet; not exceeding one hundred miles, one and a half cents; and any greater distance, two cents per sheet.

BANKS.

The Bank of the United States

IS kept at Carpenters Hall (in Philadelphia.) Was incorporated by an act of congress, in the year 1791, to continue until the year 1811. It is under the direction of a president, and twenty-four directors, chosen annually. The capital is 10,000,000 of dollars, divided into 25,000 shares. Open every day, except Sunday, Christmas, and 4th of July, from nine in the morning until three in the afternoon. Wednesdays and Fridays are the discount days.—Thomas Willing, president, George Simpson, Cashier.

Bank of Pennsylvania.

IS kept in Lodge Alley, Philadelphia, and was incorporated by an act of assembly, in the year 1792, for the term of 20 years. It is under the the management of a president and twenty-four directors ; six of the directors are appointed by the assembly, and the remainder are chosen by the stockholders annually. The capital is 2,000,000 of dollars, divided into 5000 shares, and may be increased to 7500. Open every day, except Sundays and 4th of July, from nine in the morning until three in the afternoon. Discounts to be applied for on Tuesdays and Fridays.—John Barclay, president, Jonathan Mifflin, cashier.

Bank of North-America

IS kept at No 99, Chestnut street, Philadelphia; incorporated in the year 1781. Is managed by a president and eleven directors, chosen annually. The capital is 750,000 dollars, and may be increased to 1,000,000. Is open every day, except Sunday, 1st of January, Good Friday, Christmas, and 4th of July, from nine to one, and from three to five. Discount days are Mondays and Thursdays. John Nixon, president, Richard Wells, cashier.

At all these banks bills or notes may be left at any time to be collected; which is done free of expence; but in cases of non-payment and protest, the person leaving the bill or note must pay the expence. Notes or bills payable on any day when the banks are shut, must be taken up on the preceding day. Three days grace are allowed on all notes payable. Discounts are made only on personal security, and sixty days is the longest credit. If errors happen in payments made at the banks, they must be rectified at the time. The dividends are made every six months. In July last the bank of North America declared a dividend for the preceding six months, of six per centum. The United States bank, for the same time, of sixteen dollars on each share; and Pennsylvania, nineteen dollars on each share.

PHILADELPHIA.

THE capital of Pennsylvania, and Present seat of the Federal government, lies in Lat. $39^{\circ} 56'$ North and Long. $75^{\circ} 8' m.$ West from the meridian of London, upon the Western bank of the Delaware, which is here about a mile in breadth and about one hundred and twenty miles from the Atlantic Ocean, by the course of the bay and river, and about fifty-five miles from the sea, in a South-Eastward direction. The Delaware is navigable from the sea to the falls of Trenton, about thirty miles above the city, by vessels of considerable burthen; and by boats of twenty and thirty tons, in the time of freshes, near two hundred miles into the state of New-York.

It was laid out by William Penn, the first proprietor and founder of the province, in the year 1683, and settled by a colony from England, which arrived in that and the preceding years; and it was increased by a constant and regular influx of foreigners to so great a degree, that in less than a century, and within the life-time of the first person born within it of European parents, it was computed to contain 6,000 houses and 40,000 inhabitants.

The present number of houses is about 9,500, and there are at present building in the city and suburbs not less than 400, of which the principal are, ROBERT MORRIS's Esq. by Mr. YE ENFANT.

The first Presbyterian Church by Mr. TRUMBULL— and the New Bank of the United States, by SAMUEL BLODGET, Esq.

The ground plot of the city is an oblong square, about one mile North and South, and two miles East and West, lying in the narrowest part of the isthmus between the Delaware and Schuylkill rivers, about five miles in a right line above their confluence. The plain is so nearly level, except upon the bank of the Delaware, that art and labour were necessary to dig common sewers and water courses in many places, to drain the streets. In the beginning of this settlement it was expected that the fronts on both rivers would be first improved for the convenience of trade and navigation, and that the buildings would extend gradually in the rear of each until they should meet and form one town extending from East to West; but experience soon convinced the settlers that the Delaware front was alone sufficient for quays and landing places, and that the Schuylkill lay at too great a distance to form part of the town upon its banks; whence it followed that the town increased Northward and Southward of the original plot, upon the Delaware front, and now occupies a space near three miles in length, North and South, while the buildings in the middle, where they are most extended do not reach a mile from the Delaware.

The city has been twice incorporated, and the limits thereof restrained to the oblong, originally laid out by William Penn, without including the Northern or Southern suburbs. This plot is intersected by a number of streets at right angles with each other, nine of which run East and West from Delaware to Schuylkill, and twenty-three North and South crossing the first at right angles, forming one hundred and eighty-four squares of lots for buildings. The streets running East and West are named (except High street near the middle of the city) from the trees found in the country on the arrival of the colony: Vine, Sassafras, Mulberry, High, Chestnut, Walnut, Spruce, Pine, and Cedar streets, and those running North and South from their numeral order, Front, Second, Third, Fourth &c. to Broad Street, which is midway between the two rivers. In deeds and other descriptive writings which require exactness, these streets have the Delaware or Schuylkill prefix, their numeral names, to distinguish to which they belong; as Delaware Second Street, &c. but as there are very few buildings Westward of Broad Street this addition is never made in common conversation; but when they are named they are always understood to be Delaware, front unless Scuykill is added.

Of these High Street is 120 feet, Broad Street, 113, Mulberry 60, and all the others 50 feet wide. Within the improved parts of the city they are paved, in the middle with pebble stones for carts and carriages which usually contain three fifths of the whole breadth, and on each side with bricks for foot passengers. Between the brick and stone pavements are gutters paved with brick to carry off the water, and the foot-ways are defended from the approach of carriages, by rows of posts placed without the gutters, at the distance of 10 or 12 feet from each other.

Besides the forementioned main streets, there are many others not originally laid down in the plan; the most public of which are Water Street and Dock Street. Water Street is about 30 feet wide, running below the bank, at the distance of about 40 feet Eastward from the parallel to Front Street, extending from the North line of the city Southward, to the bridge over the dock, which was formerly a draw bridge, and retains that name in common use, altho' it was converted into a stone arch above thirty years since. From the bridge it is 40 feet wide in a right line to Pine Street, and leaves a row of houses without yards, on the bank, in its whole length, between it and Front Street.

Southward of Pine Street there is an offset of about 80 feet Eastward, and the street from thence to Cedar Street is 45 feet wide and called Penn Street. This street in the original plan was intended only for a cart way to accommodate the wharves and stores to be erected under the bank, and not to rise more than four feet above it, so as to leave the river open to the view from the West side of Front Street: but the inhabitants were soon convinced that the ground on both streets was too valuable to be kept unimproved, in any degree, merely for the sake of a prospect, and now it is close built with lofty houses (except a very few vacancies here and there) throughout the whole front on both sides, and commodious wharves are extended into the river, that the largest ships that use the port, can lie in safety to discharge and receive their cargoes, and are defended from the ice in the winter by the piers made of logs, extending into the river, sunk with stone and filled with earth so as to be equally firm with the main land. This Street has been called in different parts King Street and Plumb Street, but those names are now disused, and the whole street is called Water Street, except that part called Penn Street between Pine and Cedar Streets.

Dock Street is the only crooked street in the city; beginning at the bridge in Front Street, and extending North-Westward in a serpentine track, through two squares across Second and Walnut Streets, and terminating at Third Street. Another branch of it extends South-Westward across Spruce Street, and terminates at Second Street. The ground occupied by this Street and by an open space between it and Spruce Street, below the bridge was formerly a swamp, and was given by William Penn to the corporation for the use of the city. It was intended as a place to dig a basin and docks to shelter the shipping, but experience proved that ships could be defended from the ice by the piers extended into the river, and that the dock could not be kept clean but at an expence far beyond its utility, it was therefore neglected till it became a nuisance offensive to the smell and injurious to the health of the inhabitants and was by act of Assembly ordered to be arched over and covered with earth whereby the city has acquired a beautiful street more than 100 feet in breadth towards the water, and not less than 50 in the narrowest part.

The number of the streets, lanes and alleys, laid out by the owners of the lots before they were built on, is too great to be enumerated here, there being scarce a square that is not intersected by one or more of them, some of them continued in a right line through several squares so spacious as to be easily mistaken for main streets, others only through one square.

This city was first incorporated by charter under the great seal of the province, in the year 1701: before which period it was called the town of Philadelphia. By this charter William Penn nominated the first mayor, recorder, aldermen and common councilmen, and granted them, amongst other privileges and franchises that of electing others to supply vacancies, and even to increase their own number at pleasure. The public grounds were granted to them by the name of the mayor and commonalty of the city of Philadelphia, but the commonalty had no share in the government or estate of the city, the whole body being self-elective, and not accountable to the citizens in any respect. It would be difficult to account for so extraordinary a charter from the wisdom of William Penn, did not tradition inform us that among the first settlers were a considerable number from the city of Bristol in England, whose charter, granted at an early period before the rights of the commonalty were well understood, had been familiarized by habit, which induced them to request a similar one. A copy of the Bristol charter was accordingly procured, and with little variations adopted. It was not long however before the commonalty began to be dissatisfied with it, and to make frequent complaints to the assembly, of the abuses that were practised under it; many appear upon the minutes of the house. At an early period after the charter, the legislative powers of this corporation were very limited. They could not levy a shilling by taxes, for any use whatever, and could employ the income of the city estates only for the use and embellishment of the city, here we see few monuments raised to preserve the memory of that corporation. Although men highly distinguished for integrity and abilities were elected into the office of the body politic, yet such is the nature of unlimited power, not accountable to the people, that it will divert the best men from purposes, which before they were invested with that power, they would have highly approved. The jealousy which the citizens entertained of the corporation, pervaded the general assembly of the province, and when the lighting, watching and paving the city, became a desirable object, the representatives of the freemen would not entrust the corporation alone with the power of raising or expending the money necessary for these purposes. They could not however cast such a reflection on the respectable characters of which that body was composed, as wholly to vest these powers with others: they pursued a middle line, and constituted two separate bodies by the names of the city wardens, and street commissioners, to the former of whom the lighting and watching, and to the latter the paving of the streets was committed. The mayor, or recorder, and four of the aldermen concurring with each body, in laying the taxes and prescribing the mode of expending them; and thus the city legislation for these purposes became compounded of two branches. The wardens and commissioners immediately elected by the people in the same manner as their representatives in assembly, constituted the democratic, and the mayor and aldermen the aristocratic branch. These bodies thus compounded, conducted the business committed to them, with great harmony, nor is there the least recollection of any disagreement between them. The taxes were laid with equality, collected with moderation, and expended for the real use and improvement of the city. One complaint only, had foundation which arose from the nature, rather than any abuse of power; the number of wardens and street commissioners was so great, as at very moderate wages, to render those boards too expensive.

For the honour of the late corporation it ought not to be omitted, that the mayors court was always filled with an able lawyer for the recorder, and another for the prosecution of criminal offences; and such was the orderly and upright administration of justice in it, that no court in the province, or perhaps in any other country exceeded it.

The prejudices under which the old corporation laboured from its original constitution, were so strong that upon the revolution, the general assembly declared by an act passed during their first session, "That the powers and jurisdiction hitherto exercised by the mayor, recorder and aldermen of the city of Philadelphia, were not founded on the authority of the people, and are therefore become null and void." Wherefore by that and several subsequent acts, the powers of the corporation were distributed between the supreme executive council, the city magistrates and the wardens and street commissioners, who exercised them from the year 1777, to 1789. The prejudices which had no foundation as against corporations in general, but only against the constitution of the late corporation of the city, were however so strong, that it was with difficulty the people could be prevailed on to submit to a new incorporation of the city. The defects in the administration of justice and governing the police of the city, at length became so glaring, that they were seen by all classes of people, and their minds prepared for an act of incorporation. The general assembly in the winter sessions of 1789, favoring the wishes of the citizens, passed an act entitled, an act to incorporate the city of Philadelphia, which with a supplement passed in 1790, constitutes the present city charter. By these acts

The magistracy consists of two branches: fifteen aldermen are chosen by the freeholders to continue in office for seven years; who chuse a recorder from the citizens at large for seven years, and a mayor from their own number for one year. Thirty common council-men, are chosen by the citizens at large, entitled to vote for representatives in assembly, to continue in office for three years; these were intended to form a balanced government upon the principle, that the choice by freeholders, and for a longer term would produce a more select body of aldermen, and that the citizens at large would choose characters fitter to represent and form the popular branch of city government. Eight aldermen and sixteen common council-men form a quorum or board to transact business, at which the mayor or recorder presides; they sit and deliberate together, but no act is legal, unless a majority of the aldermen, a majority of the common council men present, and the mayor or recorder concur.

That the gentlemen who have hitherto represented the citizens agreeably to this charter, have discharged their duty with credit to themselves and advantage to their constituents, is not disputed. Their impartial and expeditious administration of justice, and the very important improvements which have so rapidly taken place in Philadelphia, reflect upon them the highest honour; and indeed it may perhaps with safety be asserted, that under their direction, the police of the city has become equal, if not superior to that of any other on the continent. Some uneasiness has however, arisen in the breasts of many individuals, with respect to the mode of electing aldermen, which they represent, as being subversive of republican principles—Every freeman say they has the privilege of voting for members of the common council, representatives in the assembly and senate of the state and even for the governor and representatives in Congress; why then should the right of electing aldermen be vested in the free-holders alone?

How far this reasoning may be just is not for us to determine. It may however, be added, that on this subject a petition was during the last session presented to the legislature; and there is no doubt, that when it shall finally be discussed, it will be decided in such a manner as to give general satisfaction.

A city court is held by the mayor, recorder and aldermen four times a year, and holds cognisance of all crimes and misdemeanors committed within the city.

A court of aldermen having cognisance of debts above forty shillings, and not exceeding twenty pounds, is held every week beginning on Monday morning, and setting by adjournments until the business of the week is finished.

Each alderman has separate cognisance of debts under forty shillings.

The number of inhabitants, including the city and suburbs (including the district of Southwark and the compactly built part of the Northern Liberties, which to every purpose but as their governments, are considered as parts of the city) is found by the late census to be 42,500; there was then about 7000 houses, stores and work-shops. The number has now increased to about 6000, and there are at present about 400 building.—Hence if the number of inhabitants has increased in the same ratio as the houses, which is at least highly probable, the number of citizens may be estimated at about 55,000.

The buildings appropriated to public worship in the city and suburbs are in number 28, and are as follows, viz.

Of the Baptist church one, German Calvinist one, Protestant Episcopal church three, Friends meeting houses five, of the German Lutherans two, Swedish Lutherans one, of the Hebrews one, of the Moravians one, of the Presbyterians of different denominations six, of the Roman Catholics three, and of the Universalists one.

There are also lately erected two buildings by the blacks; the one denominated the African Protestant Episcopal Church. The other is called the African Methodist Episcopal Church.

In four of these places of worship divine service is in the German language, viz. in the German Calvinist church, in the two German Lutheran churches, and in one of the Catholic churches.

The city is provided with a number of public and private charitable institutions; the principal of which are the Pennsylvania hospital, the house of employment, commonly called the bettering house; the Friends alms house; Christ church hospital, and the dispensary.

PENNSYLVANIA HOSPITAL.

THE design of this hospital was first suggested by the late Dr. Thomas Bond, for the purpose of relieving the sick poor, whether afflicted in body or mind.

As this benevolent plan was greatly approved of, many contributors appeared to support it.

In 1752, it was first established. It was not, however, till 1756, that any part of the present building was erected.

In 1773, they received about 12000*l*. from the unclaimed shares of the Pennsylvania land company in London. For this act of the British parliament in their favour, they owe much to the unceasing labours of their great friends, the late Dr. John Fothergill, Sylvanus Baven, Jacob Hagen, and others.

In the Fourth Month, 1776, the beginning of the late continental war, the capital stock at interest amounted to 21,785*l*. 4*s*. 6*d*. and the patients of one year preceding were 530, of whom 312 were cured, and 37 relieved; besides 198 out patients.

The active capital in 1793, was stated at 17065*l*. The unproductive estate of the corporation consists of their buildings; the ground on which they stand; a grass lot to the eastward, and half a lot to the westward; a medical library, and a collection of the most elegant anatomical preparations. The whole may be valued at 32,000*l*. In addition to their former aids the assembly has lately granted 10,000, out of certain loan of-five funds; to enable the managers to make additions to their buildings in pursuance of the original plan; and to comprize a lying-in and foundling hospital, as soon as a specific fund can be raised.

THE ALMS HOUSE.

THE alms house and house of employment is under the direction of a board of managers, and of the overseers, or guardians of the poor. This is a spacious, convenient building, where the poor of the city and liberties receive a comfortable maintenance; and those who are able to work, are employed in some coarse useful manufactures. The managers of this house were incorporated in the year 1766, and were authorized to impose taxes to defray the necessary contingent expences.

FRIENDS ALMS HOUSE,

IS situated in Walnut-street, on the south side, between Third and Fourth-streets.

The friends alms house is supported by that society, for the use of their own poor. It is divided into a number of separate houses and rooms, for families, or single persons, who have fallen into decay, most of whom, by their industry, contribute to their own support, but are supplied with whatever necessaries their industry falls short of procuring, by a committee of the society; and thus live more comfortable than many, who, in full health, and unhurt by accident, provide for their own subsistence.

CHRIST'S CHURCH HOSPITAL,

No. 111, ARCH-STREET,

IS an endowment for aged women of the Protestant Episcopal church, made by Dr. John Kearsly, formerly an eminent physician in this city; who bequeathed for this purpose, an estate chiefly landed, which he vested in the rector, church wardens, and vestrymen, of the united Episcopal churches of Christ Church and St. Peter's.

Since the endowment of this institution, it has received a considerable accession of property, by the gift of Mr. Joseph Dobbins, a native of this city, now residing in Carolina, subject to an annuity during Mr. Dobbin's life.

Dr. Kearsly's will requires; that the women belonging to this institution, shall be supplied with meat, drink, and lodging, with necessary assistance in physic and surgery. There are now 19 on the foundation.

THE SOCIETY FOR ALLEVIATING THE MISERIES OF PUBLIC PRISONS,

Was instituted in the month of May 1787. The object of the institution may be known from the duties of the acting committee, as laid down in the 7th article of the constitution, as follows.

‘ The acting committee shall visit the public prisons, or such other places of confinement or punishment as are ordained by the law, at least once every week. They shall inquire into the circumstances of every person confined; they shall report such abuses as they shall discover, to the officers of government, who are authorised to redress them; and shall examine the influence of confinement or imprisonment upon the morals of the persons who are the subjects of them.

The benefits resulting from this society may be comprehended under the following heads, viz.

I. Relief in money and provision, afforded to suffering prisoners; which the society’s committee have been enabled to accomplish, to a considerable extent; partly by means of the annual contributions of the members, and partly by directing the distribution of what is occasionally given in money and victuals. Under this head may be reckoned the sometimes paying of small fees, when the case seemed to deserve it, and when the party would otherwise have been detained for them in confinement.

II. Applications to the magistracy for the enlargement of persons illegally confined, which has sometimes happened from the obscurity and friendless conditions of the parties.

III. Complaints successfully made to the proper officers of offences against law, in the management of the jail, especially the sale of spirituous liquors, occasioning the corruption of young offenders, and the hardening of the old.

IV. Legislative improvements of the penal law, in a great measure is owing to the solicitations of the society.

Since the legislature’s giving their attention to the making such improvements, and especially since the appointment of a board of inspectors with legal powers, composed of members of this society, it was thought expedient to alter the constitution, limiting the meetings to once a year; at which time a committee is chosen, who meet in the interval to transact all necessary business.

As the society’s exertions have confessedly had a considerable effect in procuring the present improved state of the public prisons, it may be proper to mention the evidences of improvements in the prohibition of spirituous liquors, the separation of the sexes, and cleanliness of the apartments, and the employing of the prisoners in useful labour. In regard to the last article, it is worthy of the public notice, that some of the prisoners, on the expiration of their terms, have received a balance due to them from their labours, after deducting for their maintenance. The punishment of refractory criminals, is the secluding them from society, in cells, elevated above the ground, and not having a ground floor; but without loading them with irons.

To aid the influence of these regulations, the clergy of different religious denominations occasionally attend for the purpose of public prayer and preaching.

To the benevolent mind, the great and important improvements which have lately taken place in our penal codes in the state of Pennsylvania, must afford the highest satisfaction. By a law passed in the year 1786, the following were declared to be the only capital crimes, viz. murder, rape, treason and arson. All corporal punishments for smaller offences were abolished, as experience had sufficiently evinced that no great hopes of reformation could be rationally entertained from him who had once been disgraced with the discipline of the cat, or any such infamous punishment. The humane must be much gratified by the salutary effects which this act produced—The number of criminals were so far from being multiplied, that they greatly decreased, and many who according to the laws of any other countries would have been cut off as being unworthy of existence amongst mankind, have been reclaimed from vice, and become useful members of society.

The limits of our plan will not admit of being more particular on this head. The humane will be pleased to learn where they can receive more extensive information.

At the last session of the legislature the penal code was again amended. The preamble to the act declares that the design of punishment is to prevent the commission of crimes, and to repair the injury that hath been done thereby to society or the individual. And that it hath been found by experience that these objects are better obtained by moderate and certain penalties, than by severe and excessive punishments; and that as it is the duty of every government to endeavor your to reform rather than exterminate offenders, the punishment of death ought never to be inflicted where it is not absolutely necessary; therefore that punishment is abolished in all cases except for murder of the first degree.

Murder which may be perpetrated by means of poison, by lying in wait, or by any other kind of wilful, deliberate and premeditated killing, which shall be committed, in the perpetration or attempt to perpetrate any arson, rape, robbery or burglary, is declared to be murder of the first degree. For all other crimes hard labour and confinement are the means used to reform offenders.

We shall just add that amongst the humane of every nation, it has long been a matter of concern that the rigour of punishment was seldom in proportion to the guilt of the offender; thus a petty scoundrel is often condemned to the gallows for a theft, a forgery of a few pounds, whereas a more cunning rascal, after a few months, or perhaps weeks confinement, is set at liberty with vast property, which he has swindled from thousands, and again commences his devastations on society.

In Pennsylvania things of this sort can no longer happen: life can only be forfeited for life; and it is probable that the time is not far distant, when mankind becoming more humane, will even in this case not dare to deprive a fellow creature of that which God alone can give.

PHILADELPHIA DISPENSARY.

THIS noble institution, which rivals all others of a similar kind, in any part of the world, in regard to real and extensive utility, was founded in the year 1786. A number of the friends of humanity, taking into consideration the evils which the poorer classes of the people laboured under, when afflicted with the feverity of disease, held a meeting, and agreed upon certain determinate laws and regulations.

According to these laws, each lady or gentleman who pays into the hands of the treasurer one guinea, is entitled to the privilege of having two patients at one time attended by the physicians; those who pay two guineas may have four, and so on in the same proportion, and those who subscribe ten guineas at once are entitled, during life, to have two patients attended at one time.

A board, consisting of twelve managers, are annually elected. Votes are given either in person or by proxy. Five managers constitute a quorum.

Six attending, and four consulting physicians and surgeons, a treasurer, an apothecary, with an assistant, and a secretary, are annually elected.

The city of Philadelphia is divided into two parts, called the Northern and Southern District. A book is kept at the dispensary, in which the names, ages, diseases, &c. of the patients are entered.

The physicians of each district attend at the dispensary on alternate days; those of the northern district on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays; those of the southern district, on Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays, between the hours of eleven and twelve o'clock, throughout the year; when every patient who is able to go abroad is obliged to attend. Such as are unable to go out, are visited at their own houses.

The duty of the apothecary is to compound the medicines, as prescribed by the physicians.

The physicians receive no recompense for their services, and yet neither the heats of summer, nor the cold of winter, prevents them from doing their duty; and while thus engaged in the cause of humanity, their sole wish is, that every species of evil in the world could be destroyed by a similar sacrifice of self interest.

Near TEN THOUSAND PERSONS have received benefit from the institution, since its foundation.

The dispensary is at present kept in Lodge alley, opposite the Bank of Pennsylvania.

The Managers are, Wm. White, Robt. Blackwell, Geo. Meade, Henry Hill, Samuel Pleasants, Lawrence Sickle, Henry Helmuth, John Field, Robt. Hare, Rob. Smith, Geo. Fox, Sam. P. Griffiths.

Consulting Physicians.—Ben. Rush, Wm. Shippen, Adam Kuhn, Thos. Park.

Attending Physicians.—Michael Lieb, John H. Gibbons, John Porter, James Woodhouse, Thos. C. James, John Cumming.

Treasurer.—Thomas Clifford.

Apothecary.—Ebenezer Hickling.

Assistant Apothecary.—Ruffel Park.

Secretary to the Managers.—S. P. Griffiths.

PHILADELPHIA MEDICAL SOCIETY.

IN the year 1772, a number of the students of medicine of the University of Pennsylvania, convinced of the advantages to be derived from a society, in which the opinions of the learned should be freely discussed, formed an association, which was called the American Medical Society. Meetings were occasionally held, and the business conducted in a proper manner, until interrupted by the late war. At the commencement of peace, the members were called together, and the society increased in reputation and utility.

In 1789, several medical gentlemen, contemplating a plan, on which business should be transacted in a more extensive manner, founded the Philadelphia Medical Society, which, in 1792, received an act of incorporation.

In 1795, the members of each institution, desirous of cultivating harmony, formed a junction; the old society relinquished their title, and acceded to that of the Philadelphia Medical Society.

The society convene in November, and adjourn in February.

Every person is considered as a junior member, until he has attended the society two seasons, or taken a degree in medicine, when he receives the title of honorary member.

Any person desirous of becoming a junior member, is obliged to write and defend a thesis on some medical subject, or some subject connected with medicine, on which he is examined for the space of one hour and a half.

When no candidates are proposed, each of the junior members, read and defend a dissertation in rotation.

This society corresponds and is connected with the Physical society of Edinburgh; the members of one association, are considered as members of the other, and hold the same rank in both.

The Society dines together every year, and have an anniversary oration.

The number of gentlemen who are enrolled as members, amount to about FIVE HUNDRED, among whom are some of the first characters in the United States.

The officers at present are;—

Benj. Rush, President.

B. S. Barton, } Vice Presidents.

Geo. Pfeiffer, }

William Currie, } Corresponding Secretaries.

James Woodhouse, }

Samuel Cooper, Curator.

Robert G. Davidson, Treasurer.

John C. Otto, Annual Secretary.

SOCIETY FOR THE INFORMATION AND ASSISTANCE OF EMIGRANTS.

WHOEVER reflects upon the various causes of emigration from Europe to the United States of America, must be convinced—whoever has the opportunity of appealing to his own experience, must know—that many of those who emigrate, although frequently endowed with talents and virtues the most valuable, arriving on an unknown shore, bereft of the means of support, and destitute of friends to whom to apply for advice or assistance, are lost, for a time, to society and themselves.

With a view to lessen or totally to obviate these inconveniences;—to render emigration as advantageous as possible, both to the Emigrants themselves, and to the country which affords them refuge; to give them every information and assistance in our power;—in short, to soften the asperities of the stranger's situation, at his first outset in a new country, we, the subscribers have associated ourselves under the title of HEALTH OFFICE.

AMONG the many institutions of which Philadelphia has to boast, that are calculated for the preservation and well-being of the citizens, that of a Health Office is among the first. This has been for many years established by law, and until the year 1794, was deemed fully requisite for every purpose intended to be executed by such institutions. The melancholy scene, however, which was acted in the city during that autumn, in consequence of the prevalence of an epidemic, resembling in many of its symptoms, the well known yellow fever of the West-Indies; from which it was by many supposed to have been imported, have induced the legislature to alter and considerably amend the laws for guarding the city from the introduction of contagious diseases, which were before defective.

A SHORT ACCOUNT

They have accordingly at their last session, passed a law, ordering a public hospital, or pest house, (as it has hitherto been called) situated upon State Island, five miles below the city, on the river Delaware, to be put in complete repair for the accommodation of the patients that may be admitted; and a resident physician, consulting physician, and health officer, to be appointed by the Governor, the former of whom is to live constantly at the hospital. And the health officer, with a committee chosen monthly, are to reside in the city, to superintend the business of the institution. Every vessel that arrives (coasters from this state excepted) is ordered to be anchored opposite to the health-office, in the stream of the Delaware, until she is visited by the resident physician, who examines every part of the vessel and makes every necessary enquiry into the state of the crews health; that of the port or place from which the vessel comes; the number of sick or deaths during the voyage; the state of the cargo, whether infected or not, &c. And if he sees no cause of detaining the vessel from the presence of sickness, or the cargo being infected with any contagious disease, (the small pox or measles excepted) he is to give a bill of health, certifying the same to the captain, who delivers it to the health officer in the city; but should he find any sick on board or apprehends danger from suffering the vessel to proceed to the city, he removes such sick to the hospital, and there attends them; and also detains the vessel until he thinks it safe for her to proceed, and has taken such measures to purify her, and the cargo supposed to be infected, as he thinks proper.

No vessel is suffered to come nearer the city than the health office, nor no person or goods suffered to be landed in any port or place within the Delaware, with a view of being conveyed into the state, before the examination of the resident physician, under very heavy penalties upon the pilot and master of the vessel, and person offending, and also upon any attempts to conceal sickness.

The duty of the consulting physician is to assist the resident physician, in the attendance of the sick landed at the hospital; to visit any vessel detained by the resident physician on account of sickness or infection on board; to remand any vessel back to the health office after her arrival at the city, in case of any discovery of sickness, and to superintend with the resident physician the smoking or purifying any goods supposed to be infected, and landed at the health office.

The health officer is to keep his office open every day, for the reception of the bills of health granted by the resident physician, to captains of vessels; to attend at the health office on State Island, when requested by the resident physician; and with the consulting physician, to visit such vessels as may be detained or put in quarantine; as also to assist in the smoking and purifying infected goods.

Twenty-four inspectors of the health office, are to be annually appointed by the mayor and corporation of the city; and six justices of the Northern and Southern Liberties, out of the city and county, who are to divide themselves into four classes, each consisting of six inspectors, who are to serve monthly, and are vested with all the powers of the health office; to regulate the management of the health office, and the conduct of the steward, matron, nurses, and other officers appointed by them: and are to make a report, with the resident physician, every month to the Governor, of the number and diseases of the patients admitted into the hospital. They are likewise to have the care of the health of the city, and do every thing that may tend to the preservation of so invaluable a blessing. A new hospital is likewise to be erected over the river Schuylkill, to be under their directions; for the purpose of removing all persons thereto, who may be hereafter affected with any contagious disease in the city.

This is a short abstract of a very lengthy and excellent law, as far as it goes, for the regulation of the health office; but it is yet imperfect in several particulars, which will no doubt, be amended at the next session of the legislature: the most beneficial consequences have however resulted from it;

The law took place the beginning of last May, and is now in an active state of operation; and it is, no doubt, owing to it, that the city enjoys its present uncommon healthiness.

When mentioning the regulations adopted by the legislature for the purpose of preventing infectious disorders, it may not be improper to observe that the city within a few years past, has experienced a very remarkable revolution, in respect to the health of its inhabitants. The bill of mortality in every year (excepting the year 7793, when the yellow fever spread depopulation amongst us) proves that the number of deaths has considerably decreased during the last ten years, notwithstanding the great increase of population.

This change in favour of life is ascribed by the physicians to the co-operation of the following causes,

I. The arching of the docks, whereby a very noxious and offensive nuisance was removed.

II. The cultivation of the lots adjoining and partly surrounding the city, whereby another extensive source of putrid exhalations is dried up.

III. An increased care in cleaning the streets.

IV. An increase of horriculture, and consequently of vegetable aliments.

V. The institution of the dispensary, which has extended medical aid to many hundreds in a year, who either perished for the want of it, or were sacrificed by quacks.

VI. The more improved state of physic, whence several diseases formerly fatal are in most instances better understood and therefore more generally cured: and,

VII. From a general diffusion of knowledge among all classes of people, from our libraries, our numerous societies and daily publications; whence the people at large are better acquainted than formerly with the means of preserving their health.

It is with pleasure we give this information from the best authority, and it is to be hoped that the same or other proximate causes will continue this valuable blessing—an increase of health to the inhabitants of Philadelphia.

FIRST-DAY, OR SUNDAY SCHOOLS.

“THE society for the institution and support of First-day or Sunday schools in the city of Philadelphia, and the districts of Southwark and the Northern Liberties,” was instituted early in the year 1791. The members then formed a constitution for their government, by which the society is to meet every three months, in every year. The affairs of the institution in the recess of the society are conducted by twelve of its members who are called Visitors, three of whom form a board to do business, who meet monthly, have the charge of the schools and expenditure of money, &c.

The society is formed of all those persons who subscribe the constitution, and pay to the treasurer at the time of subscribing and annually afterwards one dollar; but ten dollars in one payment constitutes a member during life, which subscriptions form a fund to defray the expences of the institution.

Three schools were opened in March 1791, since which upwards of one thousand scholars have been admitted, and have partaken of its advantages; and there are at this time more than three hundred on the list of attendance.

One of these schools for girls is under the care of John Ely, in the rear of Mulberry street meeting: The two others for boys, one of which is under the care of John Poor, in Cherry street. The other under Thaddeus Brown, in Front near Almond street.

It is a particular rule with the society; that the scholars come clean to the schools, and attend the places of worship to which they respectively belong.

By this benevolent institution the children of many of the poorer part of the community, who would otherwise have been running through the streets, habituating themselves to mischief, are rescued from vice, and innured to habits of virtue and religion: and it is with great pleasure, that the board of visitors have observed that the improvement in reading and writing made by the children of these schools, answers their most sanguine expectations.

OFFICERS of the SOCIETY.

Bishop William White, President, 89, Walnut street.
 Doctor Benjamin Say, Vice-president, 64, North Second street.

Charles Marshall, Treasurer, 56, Chestnut street.
 George Williams, Secretary.

THE ABOLITION SOCIETY,

INCORPORATED BY CHARTER.

THE society for promoting the abolition of slavery, and the relief of free negroes unlawfully held in bondage, was first instituted in the year 1774, and afterwards enlarged both in its objects and members on the 23d of April, 1787. The zeal and activity of this society have been crowned with uncommon success, and has given rise to many similar societies in the other states: and has also been instrumental in suggesting to the legislature most of those improvements in the laws which relate to the complete abolition of slavery, which have been enacted since the memorable law of March 1st, 1780, which first laid the axe to the root of this abominable evil.

The preamble to this act sets forth, "That whereas " the condition of those persons, who have heretofore " been denominated negro and mulatto slaves, has been " attended with circumstances which not only deprived
 " them of common blessings to which they were en" titled by nature, but has cast them into the deepest " afflictions by an unnatural separation and sale of " husband and wife from each other, and from their " children: an injury the greatness of which can only “ be conceived by supposing that we were in the same “ unhappy case.” In justice, therefore, to persons so unhappily circumstanced, &c. it is enacted, That all persons, as well negroes and mulattoes and others who shall be born within this state, from and after the passing of this act, shall not be considered as servants for life, or slaves; and that all servitude for life, or slavery of children, in consequence of the slavery of their mothers, in the case of all children born within this state, from and after the passing the act aforesaid, shall be, and hereby is utterly taken away, extinguished, and abolished for ever.

And it is farther enacted, That all such persons as before the passing of the act, would have been slaves for life, shall only be subjected to servitude till they shall have attained the age of twenty-eight years: in the same manner and conditions, whereon servants bound by indenture for four years, are or may be retained or holden.

This society has also been the happy means of procuring the emancipation of several thousand blacks, who were detained in bondage contrary to the laws of the state, and have even in many instances, by legal process and otherwise, procured the restitution of those who had been villainously kidnapped from several parts of the United States, and sent to the West Indies.

From a very extensive and regular correspondence, kept up between this society and those founded on similar principles, not only in America, but also in Europe, the friends to this oppressed race of men are daily increasing:—the French convention have declared liberty to all men without exception. Long debates have taken place on the subject in the British parliament, and the friends of humanity may exult in the prospect, that the period is not far distant, when mankind will wonder that their forefathers should ever have tolerated an enormity of so great a magnitude, as the slavery of their fellow creatures.

The stated meetings of the society are on the first Mondays of January, April, July, and October. These meetings are generally large, and composed of persons of all the different religious sects in this city. The business is conducted with great order and harmony. The great Dr. Franklin was president of this society for several years before his death, and took great pleasure in discharging all the duties of that station. Each member pays 10s. a year towards the expences of the society. This money is employed chiefly in defraying the cost and other charges which are incurred by the emancipation of negroes unlawfully held in bondage. The society consists of resident and corresponding members.

President.—James Pemberton, 333, Market street.

Vice-presidents.—William Rawle, 260, do. and William Rogers, 40, North Fourth street.

Treasurer.—John Evans, 58, North Second street.

Secretaries.—James Todd, 26, South Front street, and Walter Franklin, 72, South Second street.

Councillors.—William Rawle, William Lewis, Miers Filher, John D. Coxe, Joseph Thomas, Samuel Sitgreaves, John Hallowell, Thomas Ross, Abraham Chapman, George Fisher, Thomas Hartley, and William Graham.

The society, at the time of its incorporation, viz. 8th December, 1789, consisted of 286 members, since which period 286 members have been elected, and about 260 members reside in the city of Philadelphia and its suburbs.

HUMANE SOCIETY.

THIS institution took its rise in the year 1780, by the laudable and disinterested exertions of a few citizens—The object contemplated was to attempt the restoration of apparent death from drowning.—In the year 1787, the society extended its usefulness, by enlarging its objects so far, as to give directions for preventing sudden death from various causes, and to attempt a restoration after apparent death had taken place, viz: from drinking cold liquids, the fumes of charcoal, damps of wells, &c.

Some institutions are calculated to alleviate, others to prevent the miseries of human life. This Society goes farther, its object is to restore such as have apparently been deprived of life itself, and who without the use of means, would forever have been lost to their families and friends. It must afford exalted satisfaction to every member thereof, to find that so many are organized on the same plan, in Europe, the East and West-Indies, under whose care, many thousands have already been restored to the general family of mankind. Every subscriber and donor, has in part contributed to reanimate society with so many trophies of humanity, in whom life hid in the unknown and unseen recesses of our nature, summoned forth with such art, hath reassumed its place, and filled so many eyes with sight, and tears of joy, so many hearts with life, and gratitude, to the inventors and contributors. Husbands have been restored to their wives, wives to their husbands, and parents to protect and provide for their children. The drooping and disconsolate father, or depending and inconsolable mother, in doubt tormented, and hopes transported, have at last recognized the wished for life of the youth, on whom support and every comfort depended.

Twelve managers are annually chosen, who meet monthly, and superintend all the affairs of the society.

INSURANCE COMPANY OF NORTH AMERICA.

OFFICE 107, South Front St.

THIS respectable company began business in December 1792, and was incorporated by an act of the Legislature, in April 1794. Its capital consists of sixty thousand shares, of ten dollars each, amounting to 600,000 dollars, the whole of which, with the amount of premiums, is a security to the persons insured, in case of loss.

The operations of this company were at first confined to insurance on vessels and cargoes, and any valuable property gone or going by land or water; they are however now extended to different objects.

For the management of the company's affairs, the stockholders annually choose twenty-five directors, who elect a president out of their own number, and the remaining twenty-four divide themselves into eight committees, who, with the president, sit in weekly rotation, at their office.

The directors declare dividends of their profits semi-annually.

The following Rules are to be observed in transacting business at the company's office, viz.

I. All orders for insurance must be given in writing, signed by the applicant : and as minute a description of the vessel is expected, as the person ordering the insurance can give, respecting her age, built, how found and fitted, and whether double or single decked.

II. All policies will be ready for delivery in twenty-four hours after the order for insurance is accepted at the office; and the policy must be taken up in ten days.

III. Notes, with an approved endorser, for all premiums, must be given in ten days, payable as follows, viz.

For American and West-India risques, in three months after the date of the policy.

For European risques, in six months.

For China and East-India risques, in twelve months.

For risques by the year, in eight months.

For risques for six months, in four months.

And, for risques for any lesser time, in three months.

IV. Losses will be paid in thirty days after proof and adjustment ; but if the note given for the premium shall not have become due within that time, the amount of it shall nevertheless be deducted from the loss to be paid.

The Directors, have likewise issued the following "Table of Rates of Annual Premiums," to be paid for assurance against fire. The laying it before our readers, we trust will be acceptable.

No. I. Upon common insurances, or hazards of the first class, within the city of Philadelphia, and the Northern and Southern Liberties.

Brick or Stone houses, or Stores.

Furniture or Merchandize not hereafter specified as extra hazardous, contained in Brick or Stone houses.

For sums not exceeding 8000 dollars at and after the rate of 30 cents for every hundred dollars.

For sums not exceeding 16000 dollars at and after the rate of 45 cents for every hundred dollars.

For sums not exceeding 25000 dollars at and after the rate of 60 cents for every hundred dollars.

N. B. As the neighbourhood of framed buildings, or other circumstances, may render a risque ineligible which is within the letter of these proposals, the company reserve a right to reject such an assurance at pleasure.

No. II.—Upon hazards of the second class.

Houses or Stores of which the walls are not wholly of brick or stone.

Furniture or merchandize, including extra hazardous goods, as Pitch, Tar, Turpentine, Wax, Hemp, Oil, Tallow, Spirituous Liquors, contained in houses or stores of which the walls are not wholly Brick or Stone.

These last recited extra hazardous articles in any building whatsoever.

Ships whilst building; the premises and property therein contained of Carpenters, Joiners, Coopers, Tavernkeepers or Innholders, Stable keepers, Bakers, Ship Chandlers and Boat Builders, Malt Driers, Brewers, Tallow Chandlers, Sugar Bakers, Apothecaries, Chemists, Distillers, Printers, Oil and Colourmen, China, Glass and Earthen ware Sellers.

Mills and Machinery; Porcelain, Glass and Pottery Wares in trade.

For sums not exceeding 8000 dollars, at and after the rate of 75 cents for every hundred dollars.

For sums not exceeding 16000 dollars, at and after the rate of 75 cents for every hundred dollars.

CONDITIONS.

1st. A written application must be left at the Company's Office, stating the sum desired to be insured, by whom, and a description of the kind of property, whether buildings or goods, what kind of goods, and how much upon each building, or the goods in each, where there are out houses or stores. When household goods are intended to be insured, the application should specify as follows:

Dollars.

On household furniture & Linen

On wearing apparel

On plate

On china and glass

On printed books

On liquors

2. The premium must be paid when the order is given and accepted, the insurance to commence the instant it is paid, and to continue in force so long as the payment shall be annually made at the Office before 5 o'clock P. M. on the day when each revolution of the term is complete; or if that day shall happen on a Sunday or 4th July, or any other holiday kept at the office, then on the day preceding.

3. If any other insurance shall be existing on the same property, notice thereof must be given with the order, otherwise the policy will be void.

4. Goods held in trust, or on commission, must be declared to be so held, otherwise the policy will not cover such property.

5. This company will not be accountable for any loss or damage caused by any foreign invasion, or by any military or usurped force, or by reason of any civil commotion.

6. Bills of exchange, bonds, securities, title deeds, ready money, and bank and promissory notes, are not included under any insurance. Paintings, medals, jewels, gems, antique curiosities, and mirrors, above 10l. each, may be insured by special agreement.

7. No insurance will be made for a less time than one year.

8. Persons choosing to insure for seven years, shall be allowed one year's premium by way of discount; also one-third of a year's premium upon a triennial insurance.

9. When any loss by fire is sustained on property insured at this office, the sufferer shall in thirty days furnish the best documents he is able of the value of the goods damaged or destroyed; this ascertained, the loss within the sum insured shall be paid without deduction, in thirty days after proof thereof.

N. B. It is expected a little experience may authorize the company to extend assurance from fire to other cities; at present they confine this branch of their business to Philadelphia and its vicinity in Pennsylvania.

PENNSYLVANIA HOSPITAL, Spruce street.

AN institution founded on such humane and benevolent principles, embracing the poor of all descriptions, has done great honour to its founders, many of whose pious successors have been led by a secret impulse to endow it with occasional legacies and contributions, whereby the trust is enlarged, and a greater number of the sick are relieved: many of whom, for want of such an asylum, would suffer in solitary places, whilst the poor unhappy maniac, deprived of his senses, would be roving about without knowing a home, at the risque of his life, or the lives of the people.

Two Managers and Physicians meet at the hospital every Wednesday and Saturday, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon, to receive and discharge patients, and much trouble is saved to those who apply at that time.

All the patients must submit to the orders of the Physicians respecting their cases, and to the rules of the managers respecting their conduct, or be discharged. No amputation of a limb is allowed, without a consultation of physicians, and three at least must agree.

The instruments are the most complete of the kind, and preserved in excellent order for use; and every thing convenient for the patient is always provided.

Overseers of the poor from the country, who bring a patient, are expected to produce a certificate signed by two magistrates, certifying that they are in office, and that the pauper resides in their district, without which the applicant is rejected.

Persons afflicted with incurable and infectious disorders are not admitted; but any person in Pennsylvania receiving by accident a desperate wound, or a fractured limb, may be brought to the hospital without an order, provided he is brought immediately, after the accident happens, and such persons, whether strangers or citizens, will be well taken care of, at the contributor's expence.

The price of pay patients is various, and sometimes changes. The overseers of the poor of Pennsylvania, and all the societies therein, who support the poor by private and voluntary subscriptions, pay only eight shillings and four pence, including medicines, attendance, and all other charges, except cloathing.

The overseers of any other state, pay 15 shillings, and private persons from 10 to 35 shillings, as they and the managers can agree.—These may choose their own physician, provided he is one of the hospital physicians no others being admitted to practice in the house.

A resident apothecary lives in the house, his duty is to receive and lend out books, to administer the prescriptions and to summon the physicians on every urgent occasion, each of whom considers it his duty immediately to attend.

A great number, whose disorders are not proper for admission, have received medicine from the hospital dispensary gratis, and the best advice from the physicians.

The managers are by charter prohibited from spending any part of their capital stock, the interest of which, with such donations as are not expressly given thereto, is applied for the poor: and when as many paupers are first admitted as will absorb the said income, then if there is room, the managers may take other patients on pay, the profits of whose board also go to the poor. Of such patients they will always have a number until the said income, which is at present not half equal to the expences of the house, become sufficient to occupy it with the poor.

The name of the corporate body is, The Contributors to the Pennsylvania Hospital.

A contributor must pay at least 10l. for which he receives a certificate from the treasurer; this he cannot transfer, nor can he receive any benefit from it, but the privilege of electing and being elected.

If he is chosen a manager, physician or treasurer, he must serve without fee or reward.

The medical pupils pay for the privilege of attending the hospital practice, and such pay is commonly understood to be a perquisite to the hospital physicians; this, however, they have generously given for the purpose of founding a medical library, and to purchase Dr. Chovet's preparations; by the addition of which to Dr. Fothergill's valuable present, the institution without any expence to its funds, is possessed of the most useful and ornamental collection that was ever seen in America. The pay of those pupils exceeds 100l. per annum, which is amply sufficient to furnish the library with new books and to preserve the anatomical castings, &c.

PRISON, WALNUT STREET.

THIS place of confinement, a large stone building, occupies a lot of 400 feet by 200; 184 feet long the northside, two stories high, divided into rooms of equal dimensions, viz. 20 by 18 feet—an entry in the middle of seven and an half feet wide, which leads to a hall or passage, extending the length of the building eleven and an half feet wide, with stairs and windows at each end; the upper story is exactly on the same plan as the lower; the cellars are also on the same plan: there are eight rooms on each floor, all arched, for the twofold purpose of securing against fire and escapes, with two windows in each room. On the East and West end are two wings extending 90 feet South, two stories high, containing five rooms, on the floors of each wing, nearly the size of those in front, but with one window, all arched in the same manner also: the ground floors of these were formerly occupied as places of greater security, upon the general principle of dungeons, but have not been used for some time. On the South side is a large stone building, designed for a work-house, where the debtors are now confined. Three hundred feet of the North part of the lot is appropriated to the use of the convict prison, and one hundred feet of the South part to the debtors. The first is divided into portions for the accommodation of the different classes of prisoners. The women have a court yard of 90 feet by 32; the vagrants, &c. one of the same dimensions. The penitentiary house, or solitary cells, about 160 feet by 80. Each yard is furnished with pumps, baths, sewers and necessaries: under the debtor's yard, on the North side, runs a natural water course, which is arched, and is a great accommodation.

SOLITARY CELLS, OR PENITENTIARY HOUSE.

THIS building, directed to be built by the legislature, was early undertaken, and finished with all possible expedition. It is a plain brick building, three stories high; the first floor is paved with bricks, and is open on the North and South; three arches running the length and breadth of the building, support the rooms and passages of the house. Each floor is divided into 8 cells, 6 by 8, and nine feet high, and two passages running through the middle; the passages are about 4 feet wide—have a window at one end, which admits light and air, and a stove in the middle to warm the rooms; each cell has a large leaden pipe, which leads to sewers at the bottom, and which are kept clean by smaller pipes, leading from a cistern, into which, occasionally, is conveyed a sufficient quantity of water. The windows are secured by blinds, and wire to prevent conveyances either in or out. The doors and sashes are so constructed as to admit as much air as the prisoner desires.

The large yard is occupied by the convicts, for to labour and to air themselves in. The yard, in which the solitary cells are built, is occupied as a garden, in which vegetables for culinary, and other purposes, are cultivated. It is managed by some of the orderly convicts.

UNIVERSITY OF PENNSYLVANIA.

THE history of this Seminary necessarily involves in it the history of two other seminaries; now generally distinguished by the names of the Old College and the Old University.

The Old College consisted of three parts; the charitable schools, the academy, and the college, strictly so called. The charitable schools which were two in number; were intended, the one for the reception of thirty girls, to be taught reading, writing and sewing; the other for the reception of sixty boys, who were to be instructed in reading, writing and arithmetic. The Academy comprehended three schools; an English school, a school for arithmetic and the practical branches of the mathematics, and a Latin and Greek school. The College was divided into two schools; one, for teaching the philosophy of the body, (i. e. physics or natural philosophy) in conjunction with the higher branches of the mathematics; another, for natural theology, moral philosophy, and logic.

These several parts were not all instituted at the same time. The charitable schools and academy were opened to the year 1750.; under the direction of a board of trustees, consisting of twenty-four members, who however, were not incorporated until the year 1753. These being well conducted and continuing to flourish, the trustees were encouraged to extend their designs still further; and, in 1754, opened the philosophical schools. And as this addition to the plan rendered the charter which had been already granted them inadequate, they solicited, and in the following year obtained, a new one; which put all the several parts abovementioned under the same direction, and gave to the whole the style of 'The College, Academy and Charitable Schools of the city of Philadelphia in Pennsylvania.'

After this, in the year 1765, were added the medical schools: consisting of four professorships: one of the theory and practice of physic, another of anatomy; another of botany and materia medica; and another of chemistry.

Such was the origin of this institution: Though intended for the benefit of the public in general, and though it could not be carried on but at a very considerable expence, it was altogether the work of a few private citizens of Philadelphia; but among these was Dr. Franklin; by whom the design was originally projected, and the proposals for carrying it into execution drawn up and published.

Soon after the revolution, however, in the year 1779 there passed an act of the legislature entitled, "An act to confirm the estates and interests of the College, Academy and Charitable Schools of the city of Philadelphia: and to amend and alter the charter thereof, conformably to the revolution, and to the constitution and government of this commonwealth; and to erect the same into an university."

By virtue of this act the Seminary was placed under the direction of a new board of trustees, a few of whom had been members of the old board; the style of it was changed from that of The College, Academy and Charitable Schools, &c. to that of The University of the State of Pennsylvania: and the executive council authorized to set apart, for its use, so many of the confiscated estates as would produce an additional income of fifteen hundred pounds a year, which has not been as yet compleated.

But the trustees of the old college and their Provost, petitioning, that their charter, and the property which they had formerly held, might be restored to them; and the legislature in the year 1789, thinking fit to comply; there began at length to exist, what in the beginning had not been contemplated, two distinct seminaries: The University of the state of Pennsylvania, and, at the same time The College, Academy and Charitable Schools of the city of Philadelphia.

Neither of these seminaries, however, being possessed of funds sufficient to defray the expense of conducting them, and it not being likely that the legislature would be prevailed on to grant the money of their constituents, for the farther endowment of two seminaries of general learning in the same city, where, confessedly, but one of them was wanting; each party became still more and more convinced of the necessity of an union. Conferences for this purpose began to be held. And in the end it was mutually agreed, that the two boards, should each of them, prefer to the legislature a similar petition; praying, that, on certain conditions to be therein specified, both seminaries should be consolidated into one. These conditions were, that each board should select twelve of its members to constitute a new board; of which the governor of the state for the time being should be president: and that, whatever might be the number of professors which this new board should think fit to establish, such professors should be chosen equally out of the two faculties, belonging, the one to the old college, and the other to the old university; unless the number to be thus established should be an odd number, in which case the odd number, should be taken from either of the faculties indiscriminately.

These petitions were presented; the legislature approved of the proposal: and accordingly, in the year 1791, an act was passed, entitled, "An Act to unite the University of the State of Pennsylvania, and the College, Academy, and Charitable Schools of Philadelphia, in the commonwealth of Pennsylvania."

And thus was, in the end, erected the seminary, now called, The University of Pennsylvania.

The present Trustees of this Seminary, are

COLLEGE of PHYSICIANS of PHILADELPHIA.

IN the year 1787, the physicians of this city associated themselves under this title, for the purpose of extending medical knowledge, and of promoting harmony and uniformity in the practice of physic.

In 1787, they obtained a charter of incorporation from the Legislature.

They hold stated meetings on the first Tuesday of every month, for the purposes of their institution, and have lately published the first volume of their transactions. A foundation for a medical library is already begun, which is constantly increasing. The college consists of fellows (or resident members) and associates.

AMERICAN PHILOSOPHICAL SOCIETY.

THE American Philosophical Society, for promoting useful knowledge, was formed in the year 1769, by the union of two societies, which had been instituted with similar views, viz. the advancement of useful knowledge. One of these, styled The American Philosophical Society, was instituted in the year 1743, and at the time of their union consisted of 127 members; the other, styled The American society for promoting and propagating useful knowledge, held in Philadelphia, was instituted in the year 1766, and at the time of their union consisted of 78 fellows and 69 corresponding members.

By an act of the legislature of Pennsylvania, passed in the month of March, 1780, the society was incorporated, and the president of the executive council, (now governor of this commonwealth) made patron of the society.

In the year 1787, M. John Hyacinth de Magellan of London, presented to the society a donation of two hundred guineas, to be by them vested in a secure and permanent fund, to the end that the interest arising therefrom should be annually disposed of in premiums, to be adjudged by the society, to the author of the best discovery or most useful invention relating to navigation, astronomy, or natural philosophy: The premium to consist of an oval plate of solid standard gold of the value of ten guineas, with suitable devices engraved thereon.

Three of these premiums have, since the establishment of this fund, been awarded by the society, viz. one in the year 1790, and two in the year 1792.

Aided by the liberal donations of a number of friends and patrons of philosophy, both in America and Europe, and especially the legislature of Pennsylvania, the society have been enabled to erect, on part of the state-house square in Fifth St. between Chesnut and Walnut sts, a commodious, and not inelegant building, where they now hold their stated meetings.

The officers of the Society for the present year, are Thomas Mifflin, Esq. governor of the Commonwealth,—Patron.

David Rittenhouse, L. L. D. —President.

Dr. N. Collin, Dr. Thomas Rustin, and Dr. Casper Wistar,—Vice-Presidents.

John Vaughan,—Treasurer.

AFRICAN SCHOOLS.

WHILE the Society of Friends, and the abolition society have been exerting themselves, with success, to ameliorate the situation of the unfortunate Africans, they have also extended their benevolence to their children, for whose education they have made ample provision. About the year 1770, a school was instituted by private subscription of the Friends, with a view to prepare that degraded race for a better situation in civil life: but by the will of Anthony Benezet, of benevolent memory, a considerable donation from the society of Friends in England, and some other charitable devices have provided funds nearly adequate to its future support; so that in a short time it will no longer be burthen some to individuals.

The school is kept in Willing's alley. The boys are taught by Daniel Britt, and the girls by Elizabeth Mecom. The school is visited once a month by a committee appointed by the three monthly meetings of Philadelphia: and it is pleasing to observe that the progress of the pupils has hitherto answered the most sanguine expectation of its humane institutors.

There is also a school for the blacks supported by the abolition society, in Cherry st. kept by Helena Harris, a black woman of considerable parts, who had been for several years employed as a teacher of white children in England.

PUBLIC LIBRARY,

Fifth, between Chesnut and Walnut Streets.

THE foundation of the present library was laid in the year 1731, a period when Philadelphia afforded little assistance to the enquiries of the studious. A number of gentlemen having raised the sum of one hundred pounds by subscription, a small library was formed upon principles the best calculated to disseminate knowledge: the books were not, as in many of the libraries of Europe, confined to the apartments, but the subscribers were allowed to carry them home for a reasonable space of time.

The plan soon became popular; accessions to the number of members took place, and the stock of books was annually increased by purchases at the company's expence, and liberal donations from persons both at home and abroad.

The then proprietaries of Pennsylvania appear to have taken a patriotic pleasure in the encouragement of the plan. Besides several valuable donations, they granted a charter of incorporation in the year 1742.

A spirit of literary improvement made its way among all classes of people, and the philanthropy of the great and amiable character* who suggested the plan, was gratified by tracing the books as well into the hands of the opulent, with whom literature is sometimes no more than one of the ornaments of civil life, as among those to whom it renders a more substantial benefit. Letters, while they employ the leisure of the artist, reconcile him to his labour; by removing grosser relaxations they promote his health, while they enlarge his mind; and prolong his life, while they teach him to enjoy it.

The respectable and intelligent character of the latter class of people in Philadelphia and its environs, cannot be referred to a more probable cause, than the habits of reading promoted by this institution.

The great utility and success of this measure, occasioned the formation of other libraries upon similar principles. But as it appeared more conducive to the interests of literature, to be possessed of one large, than of several smaller collections of books, coalitions gradually took place among them, till the Amicable, the Association, and the Union companies were blended with the Library Company of Philadelphia, the title conferred by the charter.

Since this event, which took place in the year 1769, the members and the property of the company have continued to increase; the former being now between six and seven hundred in number. The number of volumes, at present, amounts to nine thousand, the selection of which, has in general been calculated to promote the more important interests of society. And the stock of books is continually increased by occasional donations, annual importations, and purchases of every American production of merit.

Some valuable machines, an apparatus for the purposes of natural philosophy, &c. and a variety of curious artificial and natural productions also belong to the company, and are deposited in their apartments. In the catalogue heretofore published, particulars have not been inserted, but lists are in the possession of the librarian, who attends to show them on Saturday mornings, from eleven to one o'clock. And the directors on proper occasions, permit the instruments to be made use of.

The shares since August 1793, have been fixed at fifteen pounds, and the annual payment at fifteen shillings from each member.

The members hold the property as tenants in common, and dispose of their shares by will or deed : but the assent of the directors, as well in such cases as in case of an original purchase, is previously necessary—a restriction early adopted, in order, as much as possible, to prevent improper persons from having access to a collection of a nature so liable to injury.

The officers of this Institution, are

William Rawle, Josiah Hewes, Mordecai Lewis,
Thomas Parke, Richard Wells, Samuel Mickle
Fox, John Kaighn, James Read, Richard Wistar, and Joseph Parker Norris,—Directors.

LOGANIAN LIBRARY,

WAS instituted by the late James Logan, a gentleman of consummate literature, who in the course of a long life had collected a number of the most rare and curious books in almost all the ancient languages. He built a house for their reception and by deed executed in his life time, vested the house and lot, together with the books and some yearly rents for supporting a librarian, and occasionally increasing the catalogue, in trustees for the use of the public forever, under certain rules and regulations contained in these instruments. Sometime afterwards he cancelled this deed, and prepared another, which he did not live to execute; this unfinished instrument varied the regulations in some respects, and the funds for the purpose of the institution, but the uses were the same as in the first. After his death, his children and residuary devisees, executed a deed conformable to that which had been prepared by him, vesting in the same trustees the whole estate intended by the founder, and the books were removed to a room prepared for them, arranged in neat order, and a catalogue printed.

By the constitution, William Logan (the founder's eldest son) was the first librarian, and the office was made hereditary in his family, with power to execute it by a deputy. The funds appointed for a librarian, &c. were originally small, but issued from a very improving estate; they were so reserved as to increase at stated periods, so as to afford a very handsome income. Till one of these periods arrived they were not sufficient for the regular support of a librarian, wherefore he attended a considerable time to the duty in person. To this institution William Logan, by his will, devised a very handsome library, collected partly by himself, and partly by his uncle, the late Doctor William Logan of Bristol in England, amounting to about one thousand volumes. After his death, which happened in 1776, the library was shut up for several years, owing to the death or absence, of the trustees. In 1791, James Logan, the last surviving trustee named in the grant, have had several previous consultations with Dr. Franklin, the latest descendant of them; and with a number of his fellow-citizens, presented a memorial to the legislature, wherein he stated the then present situation of the institution, and prayed for their aid to put it into a way of answering the end of his father, the founder. Whereupon, an act was passed, whereby the Library Company of Philadelphia, their successors, &c. for the time being, together with James Logan, or his heir and two trustees, whom he or his heir shall appoint (a majority of the whole of whom shall be a quorum) shall be trustees of the said Loganian library. It is, however, provided, that the said books and other property belonging to this institution, together with such other property as may hereafter be acquired, shall be forever kept separate from the books belonging to the Library Company of Philadelphia; and that the said library shall be known by the name of The Loganian Library, agreeably to the intention of the donor. A large and commodious room has lately been built adjoining the Philadelphia Library, for the purpose of keeping the books of the Loganian Library; and it was opened for the benefit of the citizens, in May last: since which time a complete catalogue of the books has been printed.

NATIONAL SOCIETIES.

WHEN people fall into misfortunes in any part of the world, remote from the place of their nativity, it is natural for them to make their distress first known to those who were originally from the same country. The presumption in this case is, that the love of the native soil, which is inseparable from every human breast, will make their countrymen more ready than others to administer to their relief; and that possibly some may be found among them, with whom they are connected by blood, who may have known some of their relatives, or, at least, who may have better opportunities of being assured from local circumstances that they are not impostors. No greater proof can be given of the utility of these institutions than that hundreds have been relieved by their charity who must otherwise have considerably suffered in a place wherein they were strangers.—The national societies in this city, are,

PHYSICIANS of the PORT.

RESIDENT Physician, James Mease, consulting physician, Samuel Duffield.

Rules and Regulations for securing the city and port of Philadelphia, from the introduction of pestilential and contagious diseases, established by the Inspectors of the Board of Health.

ALL captains or masters of vessels, coming from beyond sea (coasters excepted) shall anchor opposite the Health Office on State Island, and there remain until they shall receive certificates of health from the resident physician; and until they receive such certificates, they shall not land any person or goods, to be conveyed into this commonwealth, under the penalty of 500 dollars for every such offence.

After coming to an anchor, the captain or master shall send a boat for the resident physician, and while the physician is performing his official examination, the captain shall expose every part of the vessel, and every person on board, to be searched or questioned; he shall answer all the interrogatories respecting the health of the vessel; and in case he shall conceal any sick person, or in any manner deceive the physician or other proper officer, for every such offence he shall pay 50 dollars.

And if any person (the resident physician, &c. excepted) shall go on board any vessel, before the captain has obtained a certificate, he shall forfeit 50 dollars.

All vessels in a healthy state arriving from the West-India Islands, the Spanish Main, the French, Dutch, or Spanish settlements in America, shall undergo a quarantine of five days from the time of their arrival at State Island. All vessels in a healthy state arriving from any place where a contagious disorder prevailed at the time of sailing, shall perform a quarantine of 25 days, computing from the time they sailed from the said port or ports. If any person on board has died of a contagious disorder during the voyage, the quarantine shall be 20 days from the time of the said death. The chest, clothing and bedding of the said deceased, and all other goods supposed to be infected shall be landed on State Island, and there be purified. All vessels arriving in a sickly state, or becoming sickly after arrival, shall be subject to such detention and regulations, as the Board of Health shall consider as necessary. All vessels performing quarantine, after landing infected persons or goods, shall re-anchor at such convenient place as the physician shall direct, within reach of the fort guns, and shall hold no intercourse with any other, or with the shore, without a special permit. The captain shall hoist in his boat every evening at sun-set, and not let it down again until sun-rise the next day. He shall wash his vessel, and air all the bedding and wearing apparel on-board every day; and every morning and evening the cabin, hold, and steerage, shall be fumigated with brimstone, tar, or vinegar, so that the vapours may penetrate through the vessel.

Incorporated Companies.

A Spirit of enterprise and improvement is characteristic of the Pennsylvanians. And perhaps it has never appeared more conspicuous than within these three or four years past.

Besides several legislative acts for opening and improving roads and rivers, not less than seven companies have since the year 1790 been instituted for the purpose of extending inland navigation by locks and canals, of improving roads, by bridges and turnpikes, and of improving agriculture by the cultivation of vines. One of these companies was incorporated by the legislature on the 10th of April, 1793; to wit, The Conewago Canal Company, instituted for the purpose of improving the navigation of the Susquehannah, by locks, at Conewago Falls. In regard to the others, power was vested in the governor, at their institution to incorporate them, by letters patent, when a certain proportion of their respective capitals should be subscribed.

The several canal companies besides the Conewago, are the following, viz. The Schuylkill and Susquehannah Navigation Company, instituted on the 29th September, 1791, for the purpose of uniting the waters of Tulpehocken, Quittapahilla, and Swetary. Their capital consists of 1000 shares at 400 dollars each, payable at such times as the company shall direct. Their election is on the first Monday in January.

Robert Morris, president; Timothy Matlack, Secretary; Trench Francis, treasurer.

The Delaware and Schuylkill Canal Navigation Company, instituted on the 10th of April, 1792, for the purpose of cutting a canal between those rivers, and uniting the waters thereof. Their capital consists of 2000 shares at 200 dollars each, payable as the company shall direct. They have commenced their operations, and made considerable progress therein. Their election is on the first Monday in January.—Robert Morris, president; William Moore Smith, secretary; Trench Francis, Treasurer.

The Brandywine Canal Navigation Company, instituted on the 10th of April, 1793, (with a capital of 1500 shares at 200 dollars each, payable as the company may direct) for the purpose of improving the navigation of that creek, by canal and locks.

The companies for improving roads, &c. are The Philadelphia and Lancaster Turnpike Company, instituted on the 9th of April, 1792, for the purpose of constructing an artificial road between that city and borough. Their capital consists of 1000 shares at 300 dollars each. They have commenced, and made very considerable advancements in their operations.

The Company for building a bridge over the Susquehannah, (near Wright's Ferry) instituted with a capital of 700 shares at 150 dollars each; on the 11th of April, 1793.

The Company for promoting the Cultivation of Vines, was instituted on the 22d of March, 1793; with a capital of 1000 shares at 20 dollars each.

MUTUAL BENEFIT SOCIETIES.

IT being a duty incumbent on every good man, while in health, to endeavour to make some provision for himself and family, against the day of affliction, different societies have been formed in this city, with a view to raise funds for that purpose; and as the intention of these associations is mutually to assist each other in sickness, and to make provision for the widows and orphans of deceased members, they are here called by the general appellation of Mutual Benefit Societies.

HOSPITAL

Within the Pennsylvania Hospital Yard.

THIS large and commodious Hospital now building, is for the reception, exclusively, of persons deprived of their reason. The charity is noble in proportion to the excellency of the gift of reason above all other blessings: The charity is moreover necessary, inasmuch as madness, above all other diseases, requires absence from home, and confinement to cure it. To encourage the benefactions of the public to this institution, it ought to be known, that madness is no longer considered by physicians as an incurable disease: the present remedies for it, when early applied, are as certain in their effects as the remedies for the pleurisy or any other common disorder. They do not consist, as formerly, in those severe modes of coercion which were distressing to humanity. The whip is now never used; and the chains and mad-shirt but seldom. In short, the same principles which have been applied with so much success to the cure of the disorders of the moral powers in the new jail of our city, have been applied with equal success to the cure of the disorders of the understanding. As the first fruits of this new and humane mode of treatment, three persons were discharged from the hospital in one day, (cured of madness) a few weeks ago, although they had been attended under a want of many of the advantages mad people will have in the new building.

POLITICAL SOCIETIES.

CINCINNATI SOCIETY.

THE members of this society are composed of officers of the late American Army: it derives its name from Cincinnatus, the celebrated Roman, who, after having subdued the enemies of his country, retired from the theatre of public life, to enjoy the sweets of domestic retirement.

The present officers are, Thomas Mifflin, president; Thomas M'Kean, vice-president; Robert Patton treasurer; Robert Porter, secretary.

The Society meets on the 4th of July, annually, and the committee as often as may be necessary, for the purpose of granting relief to the distressed members, widows, and orphans of the society.

FRENCH PATRIOTIC SOCIETY,

ESTABLISHED to assist their countrymen with flour and other provisions during their present arduous struggle for liberty.

GERMAN REPUBLICAN SOCIETY,

INTEDED to cultivate a just knowledge of rational Liberty, and facilitate the enjoyment and exercise of civil rights, and to transmit to posterity, unimpaired a Republican form of government.

DEMOCRATIC SOCIETY.

FOR the same purpose as the German Republican.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCHES. First Presbyterian Church, in High-street, between Second and Third Streets, the Rev. Dr. Ewing Pastor. Second Presbyterian Church, corner of Third and Mulberry Streets; the Rev. Dr. Ashbel Green, Pastor. The New Presbyterian Church, corner of Coates's and St. John's Streets, Northern Liberties, is also under the care of the above gentleman. Third Presbyterian church, in Pine-street, between Fourth and Fifth Streets. Presbyterian associate church in Walnut-street, between Fourth and Fifth Streets, on the north side, under the care of the Reverend William Marshall. Scots Presbyterian church, in Spruce-street, between Third and Fourth Streets, under the care of the Rev. Robert Annan.

ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCHES. Old Roman Catholic Church, in Willing's Alley: there is likewise an entrance to this church, in Walnut-street, between Third and Fourth Streets, on the south side. St Mary's Church, in Fourth, between Walnut and Spruce streets; the pastors of these two churches, are Rev. Mr. M'Innes, and Rev. Michael Neale. Holy Trinity, or German Catholic Church, Spruce, corner of Sixth street, Rev. Petrus Helbron, pastor. An English sermon is likewise preached there every Sunday afternoon, by the Rev. Lawrence Phelan.

UNIVERSAL CHURCH. In Lombard between Fourth and Fifth streets; Rev. Elhanan Winchester, pastor.

PLACES OF AMUSEMENT.

OLD THEATRE.

Cedar St. between Fourth and Fifth Streets.

THIS theatre has so long been established, together with the merit of the managers, that nothing further remains necessary to be said respecting it.

Messrs. Hallam & Hodgkinson,—Managers.

NEW THEATRE.

THIS building is the most elegant of the kind in America. The Managers have from the general satisfaction which they have given to the citizens of Philadelphia, met with the greatest success; and it may be added, that their exertions for the pleasure of the public, have been such, as to have merited the encouragement, they have experienced.

Messrs. Wignell & Reinegale,—Managers.

AMPHITHEATRE,

Next to Oellers Hotel, Chestnut Street.

THIS building has lately been compleated at the expence of Mr. Ricketts the proprietor, and celebrated Equestrian, whose performances in horsemanship, have highly gratified the public for these three years past.

PEALE'S MUSEUM,

AT the Philosophical Hall in Fifth-street, contains, perhaps, the most valuable collection of the subjects of Natural History to be met with in this country. It is justly considered as an important acquisition to science, and the arts; and its utility is constantly becoming more and more extensive, from the frequent additions, which the indefatigable efforts and perseverance of the proprietor (Mr. Peale) is continually making. He anticipates the idea, that it will, ere long, become a great source of national information; and that the rising generation will reap peculiar benefits from its institution.

He has generously pledged himself, that the subjects of his Museum shall not be disposed of without the consent of a number of gentlemen, who, by his own invitation, are formed into a society for visiting and inspecting it.

Besides the above, there are a number of places of entertainment in the vicinity of the city, to which the inhabitants resort in great numbers, particularly during the summer months—Of them the principal are, Gray's Garden a romantic situation; and Harrogate on account of its medicinal waters.

The State House of Pennsylvania,

In Chesnut Street, bet. Fifth and Sixth Streets,

WILL perhaps become more interesting in history than any of the celebrated fabrics of Greece or Rome—The foundation was begun within a century after the rude savages had quitted the soil on which it stands;—and that august body which pronounced the freedom and sovereignty of the United States, was assembled beneath its roof, within 130 years after the emigration from Europe, under the venerable Penn.

Besides the council chamber, the house of assembly, and several rooms, it contains the hall in which the supreme court is held.—It is ornamented with two elegant clocks, placed on the East and West sides—On the East wing is the court house—And the American Philosophical Society have erected a stately building, on the North West corner of the State House yard, which was presented to that body, by an act of the legislature.

The yard is shaded with trees, and affords an agreeable walk to the inhabitants.

MARKETS.

THE principal Market in Philadelphia is situated in High-street, and is divided into three divisions. The first, which is called Jersey, extends from Front to Second Street, 396 feet long. Middle Market, from Second to Third Street, 495 feet long. New Shambles, 396 feet long; all which are 20 feet broad.

This market is, without exception, the best of any upon the Continent. The market days are Wednesday and Saturday.

Besides the above, there are two other markets—One situate in Callowhill-street, and the other in South

Second-street, between Pine and South Streets, which proves highly useful and convenient to the inhabitants.

Attached to the Middle Market, stands the Old Court House.

In said house there is an apartment appropriated for the use of the clerks of the market. In another apartment the five commissioners meet twice a week, and the county commissioners every day. From this the account of Distances from the city is computed, it being considered as a central point.
